Marion Girl and 2 Children Critically Hurt by Car

STRUCK WHILE GOING ACROSS MAIN STREET

Two Bucyrus Men Held for Investigation; Girls, 4 and 16, Near Death.

Two small children and a 16-year-old girl were critically injured in an automobile accident last night at 7:45 on North Main street which resulted in arrest of two Bucyrus men by the state highway patrol.

The victims and their injuries are:

Mary Elizabeth Bowman, 16, daughter of Mrs. Mary Ruth Bowman of 1015 North Main street, probable skull fracture, severe injury to left arm, numerous lacerations.

Marsha Lee Schroats, 4, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Schroats of 970 North Main street, possible skull fracture, internal injuries.

Thomas Schroats, 3, brother of Marsha Lee, fractures of right leg and thigh, bad cuts on left side of face.

All three were in critical condition at noon today, their physician said. He said that of the three, Marsha Lee and Mary Elizabeth probably are the most seriously hurt.

X-ray pictures of the injuries were to be made this afternoon if the three were in condition to undergo the examination.

Held for Investigation

The men arrested after the accident are Robert Neeley, 24, and Charles Smith, 26, both colored.

According to the state patrol, Neeley, driver of the car which struck the trio, left the scene of the accident, but gave himself up at the police station about midnight last night. Smith remained at the scene and was taken to the jail by police.

Neeley was charged by the state highway patrol with leaving the scene of an accident. He posted $200 bond pending hearing Wednesday at 10 a. m. in municipal court. Smith was held at city prison on a charge of intoxication.

The car driven by Neeley, and traveling north, struck the three as they were crossing North Main street at the intersection of Copeland avenue, from the east to the west side of the street. The state patrol reported they stepped into the street from behind a parked car.

Barbara Jean Sayre, 6, half-sister of the Schroats children, was walking with them but broke away when she saw the automobile and ran to safety.

The three were carried on the front of the car for a distance estimated at from 15 to 20 feet, the patrol reported.

When they fell to the street, both wheels on one side of the car passed over the Bowman girl, E. H. Wilson of the Wilson grocery at 1014 North Main street said today.

The patrol report stated that from the investigation made to date, the car was not traveling at a high speed, because it stopped in a short distance, judging from skid marks.

Taken to Hospital

The two victims were taken to a hospital in the Boyd-Uncapher ambulance. Edwin K. Smith ambulance.

Mr. Schroats, father of the two children, was at this morning at the hospital. He and Mrs. Schroats left about last night to visit Mrs. Lester Pickett of Weldon and had just arrived at the Pickett home when the call came from Marion telling of the accident.

The [illegible] had employed Miss Bowman to take care of the three children while they were gone and gave her money to buy them a treat.

The [illegible] said the three left the [illegible] home and went to the [illegible] grocery store, and were [illegible] across Main street to the Bowman girl's home to spend the evening.

Mr. Wilson, owner of the grocery, said the Bowman girl came

Marion Housing Projects Hit by New Developments

Private Construction Under Restrictions; Scofield Heights Addition Hits WPB Snag.

Marion, already hard hit by a lack of houses for rent, saw several developments in its housing picture today.

One is that the proposed Scofield Heights addition that was set up to provide some 125 houses for war workers appears definitely out of the picture under existing government regulations.

Another is that private builders probably will not be permitted to construct more than a total of 100 new homes in Marion, even for war workers.

Hand in hand with both of these developments are prospects that the federal government itself will come into Marion later with demountable, prefabricated houses to provide shelter for war workers. This has been anticipated in the past, but heretofore Marion builders had been led to believe they would be given a free hand to put up as many privately-built houses as they wished before the federal government stepped in. Now the picture is altered by the outlook that when private builders have used up the allotment of 100 houses, private home construction will end for the duration.

Cause Explained

The reasons given for this change in policy are roughly these: War production centers throughout the country are facing critical housing shortages just like Marion's. Some of the materials needed to build houses—notably copper wire to carry electricity to the new houses—are badly needed directly in the war industries. The federal government, apparently reasons it can build row-type prefabricated houses and make more efficient use of these critical materials than private builders could. For example, a private builder probably wouldn't think of putting up an eight-family row-type house (all units connected) but that's exactly what the federal government would think of first because that type of construction would serve a maximum number of families with a minimum of copper wire, pipe for plumbing and other materials.

Today's announcement that the Scofield Heights addition is out of the picture for the time being follows a war production board ruling that utility lines would have to be extended too far to serve the proposed addition. The WPB, holding use of copper wire and other materials to a minimum, ruled in a letter to one of the backers of the Scofield Heights addition that "we feel it would be absolutely impossible to obtain permission for extensions necessary to service the Scofield Heights addition." The letter was signed by H. B. Doty, district manager for the war production board at Dayton. He added a comment that it is unlikely Marion will get any additional quota of new houses after the present quota of 100 is used up.

Utility Problem a Factor

It was pointed out that the reason the WPB ruled against the Scofield Heights development probably was that the amount of wires and pipe necessary to extend utilities to the proposed 125 houses probably would serve a much larger number of houses if they were located on sites adjacent to existing utility facilities, and the WPB wants to make all materials go as far as possible. Incidentally, one builder said he understood present regulations would limit each new house to a maximum of 200 watts of electricity. That would be enough current only for four 50-watt bulbs for an entire house.

Another Marion housing project, the Universal Cooler addition, enjoys a better outlook and formal applications for priorities and FHA financing are now being prepared. Utility lines are close to the site and houses can be constructed with a minimum use of utility materials. Present plans call for use, if possible, of prefabricated permanent houses in the Universal Cooler addition. These are being considered because they would be set up in about 10 days per house, and because they embody features that make them desirable for rent and for sale.

The Universal Cooler addition could accommodate up to approximately 70 houses.

As matters now stand, construction of group houses by some fed-

FEW RESTRICTIONS ON REMODELING

Although private home construction activities in Marion appear to be strictly limited by new regulations, there are no serious restrictions on remodeling of homes to provide living quarters for war workers. Remodeling work is being encouraged, especially conversion of single houses into multiple living units. Applications for priorities on materials to do remodeling work may be filed with A. L. Guckert, district director for the Federal Housing Administration, Columbus, O.

FBI ARRESTS MORE GERMANS

158 Nabbed in Raids Last Night in New York and Long Island.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 11—The federal bureau of investigation announced today the arrest of 158 German aliens, 130 men and 28 women, in raids yesterday in New York, Long Island and in Westchester county.

The aliens are members of an organization which the government said furnished money for their return to Germany of one of eight submarine-borne saboteurs who recently landed on American shores, the FBI reported.

P. E. Foxworth, assistant FBI director in charge of the New York office, said those arrested all were members of the German-American Vocational League, or Deutsch - Americanische Berufsgemeinschaft, which has national headquarters in New York.

One of those arrested served as an aerial photographer in the German army in the last war, Foxworth said.

Foxworth said the alleged saboteur now on trial before a military commission in Washington for whom the organization paid passage to Germany from this country in 1939 was Heinrich H. Heincke. The Nazi labor front obtained a job for him in Germany at that time, Foxworth added.

Five of those arrested admitted being members of the Nazi party in Germany, Foxworth said, and several others were employed in war production factories in this country.

POLICE SAY YOUTHS CLEAR 5 CAR THEFTS

Confessions Reported Given by Marion Quartet.

City police today reported the solution of five recent auto thefts in Marion. The cases were marked closed last night when four Marion youths, all under 18 years of age, admitted the thefts after being brought here from Bucyrus yesterday morning.

Owners of the cars stolen by the youths were John Irvine of near Marion, Merlin Mitton of 120 East Columbia street, E. D. Miley of near Prospect, Ray Wentz of 345 Belmont street and Fred Berry of 625 West Fairground street.

All of the autos except the one owned by Mr. Irvine were recovered, police records show. The youths said they abandoned the Irvine auto on South High street in Columbus June 7.

Summit Co. Experiences First Trial Blackout

By The Associated Press

AKRON, O., July 11—Summit county's first trial blackout brought out the ability of war plants to smother their lights.

Col. Robert S. Harsh of Fort Hayes, Liaison officer of the fifth corps area, who viewed last night's test from a plane, said "the blacking out of the industries was as good as anything we could ask for." He suggested the industries have proved their ability, and should be excused from future trials unless ordered by army officials to participate.

The 20-minute practice, with war plants participating in only the final five minutes, was termed a success by civilian defense, police, fire and army officials.

JAP BASE IN CHINA RAIDED BY AIR FORCE

Allied Planes Blast Headquarters at Linchwan; Jap Transport Sunk.

By The Associated Press

CHUNKING, July 11 — Allied planes blasted Japanese headquarters at Linchwan, main base of the enemy's drive into central Kiangsi province, "with satisfactory results" yesterday, Lieut. Gen. Joseph Stilwell's headquarters announced tonight.

The communique said two planes failed to return — the first official reference to allied losses since the Flying Tigers of the AVG were incorporated into the U. S. airforce in China.

Linchwan is in the Kiangsi area where the Chinese reported the ambush and scattering of 30,000 Japanese.

Warfront dispatches said the Japanese were retreating toward Nunchang and Linchwan, leaving a great number of dead behind.

Japanese remnats in central Kiangsi were reported rounded up while a Japanese thrust from Kwangfeng, eastern KiKangsi, was declared turned back. The recapture of strategic Kwangfeng was said to be imminent.

Still another enemy drive, southward from Lishui in Chekiang province, was reported halted.

Summing up the initial raids by American airmen on Japanese-occupied cities, Brig. Gen. Claire L. Chennault declared they were only the beginning of a mighty aerial assault upon every Chinese center in enemy hands.

"There has been a definite change in policy since July 1 (when regular U. S. army air forces took over from the AVG)," Chennault said.

"Hankow, Canton and other cities in occupied China which were never bombed before have been bombed now," he went on.

"We are going deeper and deeper into China. All cities under Japanese occupation will be bombed. There will be a more active policy from now on."

Allied bombers sank a Japanese transport in the river at Nanchang, capital of Kiangsi province, and destroyed 10 Japanese planes on the ground while Chinese forces pushed the invaders back in other areas of the province, Chinese dispatches reported yesterday.

All the allied planes returned safely from the raid—the second attack on that important Japanese base in eight days.

Jap Air Attack Fails

By The Associated Press

ALLIED HEADQUARTERS, AUSTRALIA, July 11—Twenty-one Japanese bombers, escorted by eight fighters, attacked the Allied outpost at Port Moresby, New Guinea, yesterday but were kept at high altitude by anti-aircraft fire which brought down two bombers, General MacArthur's headquarters announced today.

"The enemy's bombing was scattered and wild and there was no damage or casualties," a communique said.

ANOTHER TAX BOOST VOTED

House Committee Tacks on an Additional One Per Cent to Surtax.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—An eleventh-hour decision to boost the average individual's income taxes another one per cent to almost double the present rates put the yield of the house ways and means committee's new revenue bill above $6,000,000,000 today.

Members worked to finish writing the bill before nightfall. It has been the subject of weeks of hearings and, when completed, will be headed for more weeks of congressional debate.

At an unusual night session last night, the committee adopted a motion to add 1 per cent to the new surtax graduated scale of from 12 per cent on the first $2,000 of personal net income to 81 per cent above $5,000,000. Present rates are from 6 to 77 per cent.

Thus, with a 6 per cent normal tax, compared with the present 4, the committee's new combined rate would be increased from 10 per cent to 10 per cent in the lowest bracket.

By its action, the committee picked up $310,000,000 in additional revenue, but that addition was offset to the extent of $85,000,000 by another vote to retain the personal exemptions in the present law for soldiers and sailors. The committee previously had decided to lower the single person's exemption from $750 to $500 and for married couples from $1,500 to $1,200.

Thursday the committee eliminated a $102,800,000 item to be obtained from increased postal rates on second and third-class mail. Considering all revisions since the committee began reviewing a final copy of its bill last Tuesday, the estimated yield today stood at $6,046,200,000.

The treasury had asked the committee to raise $8,700,000,000.

Unofficial Ship Toll Now Stands at 354

By The Associated Press

With the disclosure of five more cargo ship sinkings by U-boat shells and torpedoes, the unofficial Associated Press tabulation of Allied and neutral losses in Western Atlantic waters stood today at 354.

Sixteen seamen were killed in the destruction of four merchantmen—two British, one American and one Belgian—disclosed yesterday by the U. S. navy which reported that 230 other crewmen were rescued. The Cuban navy announced the sinking of a Honduran craft, with all hands saved.

Two torpedoes and some shells sank a British merchantman of medium size in the South Atlantic June 1, killing three men. Quartermaster B. G. Cook of London, one of 78 survivors, said the raider was the largest submarine he ever had seen—"big enough to carry a plane."

HARDING HIGH BAND TO PLAY SUNDAY

Second Free Concert of Summer Set for 2:30 P. M.

The last of a series of two free concerts to be presented by the Harding High school band under the direction of Homer E. Huffman, director of instrumental music, has been scheduled for 2:30 p. m. Sunday at the Chautauqua pavilion.

The band has been practicing once a week since the dismissal of school for summer vacation and is presenting the programs for the pleasure of the public. Playing with the group will be both last year's seniors and incoming sophomores, who will be associated with the band during the next three years. This concert will probably be the last appearance for those who were graduated last June. They are Frances Hedge, Paul Mason, Russel Wilhelm, Paul Robinson, Elizabeth Wolfel, Loa Zimmerman, James Roderick and Harold Steinhelfer.

The program as outlined by Mr. Huffman, includes: "The Star Spangled Banner;" "Unfold Ye Portals," a transcription from the choral selection by Gounod; "American Spirit," a march by Barker; "Soldier's March" from "Faust" by Gounod; "On the Beautiful Blue Danube," by Strauss, one of the most famous waltzes of all times; "Cheerio," march by Goldman with a whistling chorus; "The Courtier," a tone poem by Norman North; "The Crosley," a march by Fillmore; the popular tune, "Star Dust," by Carmichael; and a medley including "Come Ye Thankful People" by Elvey and "Softly Now the Light of Day" by Gottschalk.

SPEAKER IMPROVED

CLEVELAND, July 11 — Tris Speaker's condition was "slightly improved" today, doctors at Lakeside hospital said, although he is still on the danger list. Speaker, one of baseball's greatest players around 25 years ago, was operated on last Wednesday for an intestinal obstruction.

GAIN 5 MILES IN RESUMING 18-DAY BATTLE

Called Desert's Biggest Air Assault; Nazis Claim Big Gains in Russia.

By The Associated Press

Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted today that the German armies smashing toward the Caspian sea had reached the Don river on a 220-mile front, within 80 miles of Stalingrad at one point, and had inflicted a great "destructive defeat" on the Russians.

The Nazi command claimed an advance in depth of more than 200 miles since Hitler launched his grand offensive from the Kursk-Kharkov sector two weeks ago.

Simultaneously, the violent renewal of the 18-day-old battle of Egypt marked the beginning of one of the most critical weekends of the war—a phase which might precipitate the opening of an Allied "second front" in western Europe.

At the outset, the British apparently gained the upper hand as Imperial headquarters reported that Gen. Sir Claude Auchinleck's armies, reopening the stalemated "battle of the bottleneck," had advanced five miles yesterday in a pre-dawn attack.

Gigantic Air Assault

As the battle flamed toward a showdown, Allied airmen, presumably including U. S. army fliers, swept into action today with the mightiest aerial assault ever witnessed in the desert.

Front-line dispatches said a greatly strengthened enemy air force rose to challenge the allied warplanes, and spectacular dogfights raged high above the battle area. Axis losses were said to be high.

The British announced they had struck out westward along the railway from El Alamein, 63 miles west of Alexandria, seizing the initiative to break a 10-day lull in the Egyptian conflict.

"A number of prisoners were taken and other casualties and damage were inflicted upon the enemy," British GHQ said.

At the same time, Field Marshal Erwin Rommel's axis mechanized columns moved eastward in the southern sector of the desert battlefield, a 33-mile-wide stretch between the Mediterranean sea coast and the desolate salt marshes of the Qattara depression.

A British communique said Rommel's counter thrust was "engaged by our columns, which destroyed several enemy tanks."

Italian Version

Italian field headquarters, also noting the resumption of violent fighting, declared:

"Strong enemy attacks have been clearly repulsed in the center of the front and stopped in the northern (coastal) part, where fighting was particularly acute.

"In the southern sector, Axis troops in a surprise attack have compelled the adversary to make a notable withdrawal."

Crisis in Russia

As the two armies grappled in momentous battle, with the fate of the entire middle east perhaps ranging in the balance, the news from Russia continued grave.

Under assault from five directions, Marshal Semeon Timoshenko's Red armies fell back in Auborn retreat as the Germans captured Rossosh, 100 miles south of Voronezh on the vitally important Moscow - Rostov railway, and pressed simultaneous offensives against Voronezh, Staryi Oskol, Kantemirovka and Lisichansk.

A bulletin from Adolf Hitler's field headquarters asserted that 88,680 Russians had been taken prisoner and 1,007 tanks destroyed or captured in fighting west of the Don river from June 28 to July 9 and claimed that "the enemy was destructively beaten."

The Nazi command said Gen. Fedor Von Block's steamroller had reached the Don along a 220-mile front below Voronezh, after 120-mile break through from the Kharkov-Kursk sector, and had established several bridgeheads across the river.

Soviet dispatches frankly conceded that the Nazi offensive, involving an estimated 1,000,000 troops, was coring "developing successes" in a series of gigantic battles, but declared the invaders were suffering bitter losses.

Acknowledging the fall of Rossosh, which meant that the last major rail communication between Russia's central and southern armies had been cut, the Soviet command announced two dangerous new German thrusts far below Voronezh — one striking at Lisichansk, only 140 miles north of the Rostov gateway to the Caucasus oil fields; the other

TRIAL ENTERS FOURTH DAY

Complaints Heard Over Continued Strict Secrecy Surrounding Spy Hearing.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11 — A mass of documentary evidence today confronted a military commission sitting for the fourth day to decide the fate of eight German saboteurs.

But as the men who landed on east coast beaches from enemy U-boats, again faced the commission of generals, there were complaints over the secrecy which has surrounded the first days of the life or death hearing.

Elmer Davis, director of war information, said the public would "feel better" if more news were available from the trial chambers.

Major General Frank R. McCoy, president of the commission, gave scanty details of the trial of the men alleged to have come here from Germany to slow the war effort through violence in production centers.

There were indications that the trial would go far into next week.

McCoy's statement said the commission spent most of yesterday hearing testimony of an FBI agent, and reading documents. There was no indication of their contents.

He added that counsel for the defense and the prosecution both had told the commission that the volume of evidence was expected to prolong the case.

Army Proceeding

The trial was strictly an army proceeding. The commission permitted the signal corps to make both still and silent moving pictures of the scene before yesterday's proceedings opened.

Davis, at a press conference,

DRIVERS COME TO OHIO TO BUY GAS

Motorists from W. Va. and Penn. Get Fuel Cheaper.

By The Associated Press

CLEVELAND, July 11—West Virginia and Pennsylvania motorists are driving into Ohio to purchase gasoline as much as 7½ cents cheaper than they can get it in their own states.

Signs some places on the Ohio side of the border proclaim such warnings as "Get your gas now—last chance to avoid high prices." Wheeling motorists cross into this state to "fill it up" despite a ten-cent toll bridge charge each way, and some nearby Ohio stations say the ratio of West Virginia drivers is three to one.

Trade sources reported today these conditions had arisen since the latest price increases authorized in the eastern area to compensate for increased cost of hauling by railroad instead of by tanker. Rationing itself is not directly involved, for western Pennsylvania and most of West Virginia are exempt.

Generally speaking, around Wheeling the West Virginia retail price is 24.5 cents a gallon against 18 in Ohio, although a few stations charge less, making

"Loyalty"

A Sermonette

By REV. M. E. HOLLENSEN

Pastor, Emanuel Lutheran Church

"Let every soul be subject unto the higher powers."—Rom. 13:1.

THE CHRISTIAN and his government. How vital is this subject these days of war come upon us. During these times, the child of God desires to continue as a member of Christ's kingdom, and at the same time he yearns to fulfill his obligation to his country. So the question naturally arises in his mind: What is the Christian's duty toward his government in time of war?

The great apostle to the Gentiles, St. Paul, writing by inspiration of God to the congregation at Rome, gives us the answer we seek. Paul assures us that the duty of the Christian to his government is ever the same, whether his country is at war or peace. And the one word that describes God's requirement of His followers to their government is loyalty. The child of God is to be loyal to his government, whether war rages or whether days of peace and prosperity reign.

This loyalty that God requires of His children means that:

I. THE CHRISTIAN PRAYS FOR HIS GOVERNMENT

Prayer is the Christian's vital breath, the Christian's native air, so goes the beautiful hymn. And surely, when hard and trying days come upon the land that he loves, the follower of Jesus turns to God in prayer. And he prays in the proper way. He knows that God both hears and answers every prayer that is prayed in the name of Jesus Christ. Since God is all powerful, the believer is certain that one thing is just as easy for God to do as another. Hence, in prayer the child of God asks God to do His will. The believer thus has the assurance that what God does will be in keeping with His wisdom, and this, the believing Christian knows, is always best. Since God cannot sin or err, the petitioner at the throne of grace is satisfied with what God's wisdom sends to the land he loves. The Christian is ever pleased to accept God's will in any troublesome situation, for he has learned by experience that "all things work together for good to them that love God." The child of God prays with the firm conviction that prayer is power, and that God by means of prayer moves in the direction of His wisdom and accomplishes ends that serve His glorious purposes.

What is the Christian's duty in days of war? He is commanded by God to be loyal and that loyalty never shows itself in sincere and heartfelt prayer for God's richest blessings to rest on the land he holds dear.

This loyalty that God requires of His children means also that:

II. THE CHRISTIAN OBEYS HIS GOVERNMENT

By obedience the child of God understands that God desires that he willingly and gladly submit to the will of his government. Since government is of God, since God ordains government, since God himself is a God of government and order and not of confusion, the Christian knows that God wants nothing short of an obedience that is willing and voluntary. So the child of God wills and determines to do what his government asks of him. He carries the spirit of willing cooperation with him. His desire is not to see how he may get around certain limitations, but rather to fulfill new restrictions and demands with gladness and willingness of heart. He realizes that certain privileges that he has enjoyed may have to be given up for the duration of the emergency. This he does without reluctance is ready to do because he desires to be loyal to God and also to his government. Nor does the Christian count it loss when his government that he loves asks for these sacrifices. He responds with a desire to obey both the letter and the spirit of any restrictions that are laid upon him in the government's effort to prosecute the war with haste and effectiveness.

What is the Christian's duty to his government in time of war? He shows his loyalty in willing obedience to the demands that are laid upon him.

This loyalty that God requires of His children means, finally, that:

III. THE CHRISTIAN SERVES HIS GOVERNMENT

The child of God is anxious to do his part in whatever way he can. When called upon to perform a given task that he is capable of doing, he is willing to serve. If he is asked to bear arms, he does so. If he must endanger his life for the sake and safety of this country, he does so. If he is called upon to purchase War Bonds so that his government can carry on the war to the end that victory may be attained, again, he is ever ready to do his part. The Christian is willing to do whatever the "higher powers" ask, so long as they do not demand that he go against the will of God. We in America should be especially thankful, however, that not once have we been asked to do that which God forbids. We may serve our government, in the certain assurance that in so doing we are not disobeying God in the least, but rather being loyal to His will.

In dark days, in days of danger, men, who have been born again through faith in Christ unto a glorious hope show their loyalty to their government. This loyalty expresses itself in the acts of praying, obedience and service. It follows, then, that the more we hear the Word of God in our churches, the greater should be our loyalty, both to our God and our country. May God bless our churches that they may ever be powerhouses that impart heaven and country loyalty to all who worship there.

Majority of Clergymen in Favor of All-Out Support of War Effort

By GEORGE GALLUP

Director, American Institute of Public Opinion

PRINCETON, N. J., July 11—The role of the church in wartime is a controversial issue which has stirred up heated debate among protestant pastors and church conferences in many denominations.

The Methodists, the Congregationalists, the Presbyterians, the Northern Baptists, the Friends—all have found some division of sentiment in their ranks. At a recent Congregationalist conference, 400 delegates voted to support the war effort at whatever sacrifice, while 135 remained convinced of the futility of war.

In order to discover what attitude the members of the clergy throughout the whole country are taking, the Institute has conducted a special survey among a cross-section of protestant ministers in all the main denominations and of Catholic priests.

They were asked the open question:

"In general, what attitude do you think the church should take toward the war?"

The Church Militant

The replies fall into half a dozen main categories. The great majority of clergymen interviewed, about six in every ten, took the position that the church should support the war and give full cooperation to the government in the war effort.

Most of the ministers and priests taking this point of view explained that, whereas the church opposes war, it feels justified in supporting an all-out war effort because this is a "religious conflict," a war to preserve religious freedom.

"We must support the war," says an Indianapolis pastor reflecting the general viewpoint, "because if we don't there will not be any church or religion or free way of thinking if the Axis wins."

Church a Sanctuary

A second large group of clergymen takes the attitude that the church can aid the war effort in a somewhat more indirect fashion—that is, by giving spiritual strength to the people and maintaining morale.

The essence of this idea is that the church need not be a militant force in the war effort, but rather a spiritual sanctuary and the provider of spiritual strength to the people.

This attitude is well summarized by a Baptist preacher in Los Angeles who points out:

"We have a spiritual mission more necessary than ever. But we do not intend to make the church a recruiting station or a bond mart."

The next main facet of opinion among the clergymen interviewed from Maine to California is that the church should be the crucible, as it were, in which is forged a just and lasting peace. Those who hold this view believe the clergyman's main effort at this time should be to pave the way for a Christian peace, to guard against the development of hate and revenge complexes in his congregation.

Closely akin is the view which a few take that the role of the church is to keep the Christian spirit alive" in these times of international slaughter and brutality. Some think the best way to accomplish this is by giving practical aid to the relief of suffering.

Finally, a small number, about one in every fifty, say that the church should be loyal to the government, but, "must oppose war as an evil."

Following are a few individual comments from pastors which reflect and describe the general thinking of the clergy on the war issue.

"I think of the war as a surgeon would think of performing a major operation—it is regrettable but necessary."

"In a time when religious freedom is challenged the church must defend itself."

"I was bitterly opposed at first, but now I find a line drawn sharply between Christianity and paganism. Under these conditions, militarism is necessary evil."

"I agree with the major-general who said, 'Your business is to make mine impossible.' I am in favor of war because there is no other way."

VICTORY GARDENS IN GALION SCHOOL PLAN

Students Conduct Projects for Home Economics Credits.

Special to The Star

GALION, July 11—Several victory gardens will be sprouting grade cards by the end of July in Galion, at least those which are the projects of several students who are working toward credits in home economics. Four students under the supervision of Miss Helen Smith, high school home economics instructor, have chosen victory vegetable gardens as their summer project in order to obtain additional school credit in that department.

Florence Lowe, Belva Sunshelfer and Ruth Ganshorn are already picking vegetables from their gardens which were begun before the end of the school term. May Baker is nursing along a field of watermelons in the hope of rivaling her father's muskmelon patch. Flower gardens was the hobby chosen by Letha Keilog, although several of the other students added floral borders to their vegetable crops.

Farming doesn't seem to be the only choice as summer projects, however, for two students, Edna Caris and Aldene Wolfe have sanded, painted, scraped and sewed as they completely remodeled their own rooms at home. Miss Smith reported that these projects showed originality and planning.

All work is planned to be completed by July 30, at which time the students will receive one-fourth credit for their achievement, providing it is successful in the eyes of the supervisor. The entire program is supported under the state-wide Smith-Hughes system and it is necessary for all students to submit a written report on each project along with their achievements. The ninth grade class is required to submit three projects, all of which must be finished between October and the end of the following July. Tenth, eleventh, and twelfth grades have four projects within the year's time. The complete school term plus the summer work gives one credit and a quarter toward graduation.

Bullets Will Win The War
Ballots Will Win The Peace

BROOKS FLETCHER

Bullets shot by brave soldiers won the last world war but ballots cast by bad politicians WRECKED the Peace for which our soldiers fought and died.

If YOU think it unfair to our soldiers, now fighting at the front, to keep in Congress the obstructionist politician who voted AGAINST America's Defense Plans to provide our Armed Forces with ships, guns and planes to save America —THEN BE SURE TO REGISTER THIS MONDAY, JULY 13th, SO YOU CAN VOTE AT THE PRIMARIES.

Why Brooks Fletcher Was Named To Take The Place Of Secretary Of War In The Debates On America's Peace Plans

After the last world war Brooks Fletcher worked for America's Peace Plans to prevent future wars.

Secretary of War Baker was unable to leave Washington to debate our Government's Peace Plans for which he had been scheduled.

Brooks Fletcher, of Marion, was chosen to take Secretary of War Baker's place in the Peace debates because Secretary Baker, President Wilson and other leaders knew that Brooks Fletcher had addressed audiences in cities throughout the country on the subject of "America's Peace Plans To Prevent Future Wars."

It is because of his record of public service, his experience in business, legislation and affairs of government that Mr. Fletcher was asked to be a candidate for Congress this year.

Nominate Brooks Fletcher For Congress. You Can Register This Monday Up To 8 P. M. But Monday Is Your Last Chance To Register For Primary.

(Signed by F. Axtell, Member Fletcher-for-Congress Committee)

Need a New Car? then-better get it!

Think things THROUGH on buying a new car! If you are Eligible under Newly Liberalized Rules it's Smart to BUY NOW! And here's why!

The Government wants us all to save gasoline.
The Government wants us to save rubber.
The Government also wants to make most efficient use of transportation facilities now available—including cars now built and ready for sale.

You do not help the country by continuing to "get along" on a car no longer fully efficient, safe or dependably able to serve you in any necessary use.

If you can qualify under latest rationing rules, you are recognized as an essential driver.

As such, you are not only entitled to your share of available gasoline and rubber, but are in reality expected to make the best use of them.

Your Buick dealer can show you that you can more efficiently do this in a brand-new, gas-thrifty, solidly dependable new 1942 Buick than in an older car which may have seen better days.

So before jumping at conclusions, get the whole story on new-car buying. Drop in on your Buick dealer for full details. He is at your service—any time.

Are you included in this list?
ARE YOU directly or indirectly engaged in the production of war materials or the prosecution of the war?
ARE YOU a physician, surgeon, nurse, veterinarian, clergyman or farmer?
DO YOU use your car in public service, such as fire or police, public health, highway maintenance work or the like?
ARE YOU owner of a business or other vital means of public transportation?
ARE YOU a newspaper, radio editor, or a columnist in technical fields connected with war work?
THEN ARE the Second Emergency Rules you eligible under provided rationing rules to buy new automobiles. There are other details of eligibility, of course, but if you are included in this category, it will pay you to see your Buick dealer right away and get full information. But also bear in mind, before you decide what you want or should buy, how we may!

If you're eligible to buy—
Better Buy Buick!

Social Affairs

THE HOME of Mrs. Ray R. King on W. Vernon avenue provided a lovely setting for the picnic held by the Town and Country Garden club last evening. A picnic supper was served from the dining room where the table was centered with a bouquet of daisies, white phlox and baby breath, and the guests were seated on the terrace and in the garden.

During a short business session the following members were named a nominating committee for the annual election of officers: Mrs. Francis B. Jennings, chairman, Mrs. Robert E. Wolfe, Mrs. John K. Barrett, Mrs. David W. Evans and Mrs. King. At the next meeting the members will bring flower arrangements. The evening was spent socially.

Arrangements were in charge of a committee composed of Mrs. King, Mrs. J. A. Dodd, Mrs. John Courtright, Mrs. Howard Geer, Mrs. Frank M. Knapp, Mrs. T. E. Shoemaker and Mrs. Hoover Reed.

MISS BETTY JANE MULVAINE, whose marriage to Sergeant Robert Wolbert of Fort Bragg, N. C., will take place this evening in Trinity Baptist church, was complimented with a personal shower Thursday evening when Mrs. John Gruber of 195 Stark court entertained at her home. Bridge was played, honors going to Miss Maxine Buller and Miss Mulvaine. Miss Mary Cooper received the floating award.

For refreshments the table was lighted with red, white and blue candles held in triple-branch candelabra, and the centerpiece was red, white and blue carnations and miniature American Flags. Favors were in Miss Mulvaine's wedding colors of blue, pink and white. The shower gifts were arranged around the table centerpiece.

Present with Miss Mulvaine were her mother, Mrs. Roy Mulvaine, Mrs. Helen Lattimore, Mrs. Roy Harper, Mrs. Donald Miller, Mrs. Durwerd Giles, Misses Betty Rinesmith, Susan Shealy, Betty Ann Bacon, Mildred Martin, Maxine Buller, Mary Fields, Mary Cooper, Marjorie Rindley and Isabel Bower.

Mrs. Clifford Leffler and Mrs. George Lust entertained Thursday evening in the former's home at 172 Clover avenue in honor of miscellaneous showers for Mrs. Donald Helby, the former Miss Ruth Leffler.

Little Miss Sandra Mae Leffler, costumed for rainy weather, presented Mrs. Helby's gifts from a wagon. Bouquets of flowers decorated the rooms.

Euchre was played, honors going to Mrs. Henry Rush and Mrs. B. H. LaBounty. Mrs. Paul Haber won the galloping award. Lunch was served at small tables.

Other guests were Mrs. Robert Schrope, Mrs. E. C. Williams, Mrs. Perry Selter, Mrs. Melvin Selter, Mrs. Edward Flach, Mrs. Ralph Augenstein, Mrs. Oscar Kaelber, Mrs. Fred Leffler, Mrs. Leslie Bunnell, Mrs. Ralph Lautner, Mrs. Carl Russell, and Misses Dorothy Messenger, Donna Ruth Simning, Violet Lingrel, Maurine Zachman, Emma Leffler, Edith Augenstein, Jeanette Augenstein and Jane Leffler.

The home of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Weimert of the Prospect pike was the scene of the annual picnic for members of the Missionary society of Central Christian church Thursday evening. Approximately 100 members and guests attended. In charge of arrangements were the following groups: Mrs. E. Elliott and Mrs. W. Thomas, Group 1; Mrs. Frank Fairchild, Mrs. Edna Dixon and Mrs. W. C. Tucker, Group 2; Mrs. James Foley, Mrs. Ella Boyer and Mrs. Harry Hallich, Group 3; Mrs. Harry L. Bell, Miss Florence Betz and Miss Luella Scholl, Group 4.

Mrs. Delmar Dulin, president, was in charge of a short business session and read a poem, "A New Year." Annual reports of the society were given and the various groups presented their quarterly and annual reports. Mrs. Dulin appointed Mrs. Elliott as leader for Group 1 and named Mrs. E. J. Hollandshead reporter. Mrs. Harry L. Bell reported on the work being done by the Council of Church Women. Mrs. George Pickering and Miss Luella Scholl were in charge of the worship period and a playette, "Why Missions?" was given by Mrs. John A. Miller and Mrs. Charles Burke. Games and other recreational activities completed the evening's program.

The Women's Missionary association of the First United Brethren church met Thursday afternoon at the church community house with Mrs. Marie Dilsaver as leader. Taking part in the program were Mrs. Florence Uline and Mrs. Dorothy Burkepile, Mrs. Ira Unashper, Mrs. Mae Berry, Mrs. Harry Fowler, Mrs. L. E. Walters, Mrs. Minnie Van Asbeck and Miss Kate Cromer. Mrs. Walter Scranton and Mrs. Mary Green.

Hostesses were Mrs. Van Asbeck, Mrs. Garrison Roebuck, Mrs. Cora Uhn and Miss Laura Collier. Miss Edna Fowles and Rev. Garrison Roebuck were guests.

Miss Shirley Barnhart of 198 Lincoln avenue received the compliments of friends at a shower held for her at the community house of the First United Brethren church Wednesday night. Her shower gift was a purse presented by the women of the church.

Miss Barnhart, the bride-elect of Clarence Howard, will make her home in Elwood City, Pa., after her marriage.

About 40 persons were present. The evening was spent in singing and with stunts. Rev. Garrison Roebuck and Miss Barnhart gave short talks.

Mrs. Minnie Van Asbeck and Mrs. Walter Scranton were hostesses.

A patriotic program was held at the regular meeting of the San Souci club at the home of Mrs. Homer Moehn of Richland pike Wednesday night. It was in charge of Mrs. F. M. Fairchild, program chairman.

Mrs. W. T. Mack had devotions.

Mrs. W. T. Owen played a piano solo, Mrs. Fairchild read two poems, "My Country's Flag" and "Hitler Calls to the Devil," and Mrs. Alpheus Gruber and Mrs. Merle Lashley sang a duet. Group singing followed.

Guests were Mrs. Merle Lashley, Mrs. Homer Conckle, Mrs. Ralph Good and Mrs. James Moenn.

The Delta Game-a-Euchre club's next meeting will be a picnic July 30 at Newman's, members planned at a session Thursday at the home of Mrs. Clifford Pall-Hank of Olney avenue.

Mrs. Robert Porter was a guest. Mrs. Joseph White and Mrs. George E. McGuire won high honors and Mrs. George McGuire the mystery award.

Mrs. Charles Keck of Avondale avenue was hostess for a potluck dinner and lawn party when members of the Victoria club met Thursday evening at her home. Euchre was played, awards going to Mrs. Helen Bartz and Mrs. Betty Coon. Miss Kathern Clark and Mrs. Annabelle Keck received guest awards.

Mrs. Frank Grubaugh of West Columbia street was hostess to the Congenial Stitchers' club Wednesday. Guessing box was won by Mrs. J. E. Bowen and contest honors went to Mrs. Franklin Gerlen and Mrs. Bowen. Mrs. Tommy Thomas was a guest.

Mrs. James C. Wylie of East Church street gave a dinner Tuesday evening in honor of her uncle, E. J. Carter, who is visiting her from Berwyn, Ill.

Importation into France from Algeria of the meat of horses, donkeys and cross breeds under specified health conditions has been permitted.

JUST THINGS

By EDNA B. DUTTON

Specific

CONVERSATIONS are funny things particularly if you are on the listening. Not that you're an eavesdropper from choice but there are times when one gets in on them whether or no. While we didn't hear this one, we know of people who did. The smartly groomed gal walked up to the stamp window at the postoffice and informed the clerk she would like "one cent stamps." How many she queried when the stamps were produced, to which the clerk replied without an inch as the quiver of an eyelash, "two cents." She put her money on the line, took the stamps and went on her way without so much as a glance at the neat customers who at the moment was scurrying to cover up her amusement.

Gossip

THANKS to some one who has as great a yen for mowing away clippings as we have, we recently learned some interesting facts about our native heath and your close neighbor. According to the historians the village of Agosta has been known from time to time as Carey Station, Belfast and New Bloomington. Its oldest name is derived from W. W. and Wingate Carey, who with Armstrong Smallwood and C. A. Darlington laid out the village in 1856. W. W. Carey erected the first frame store and warehouse in the village. Subsequently a postoffice was established at the place by the name of New Bloomington. In 1875 the station was changed to the name of Belfast, while the postoffice continued as New Bloomington until April 1, 1893, when the names of both station and postoffice were changed to Agosta. The population of the village was 271 in 1880 and 399 in 1900.

Magazines

WHAT are you doing with your magazines this summer? You know! the ones you bought just recently to while away a summer afternoon or perhaps just to read one particular article? Why not give them to the women at the canteen for the soldiers traveling through our city day and night? (No doubt most of you do.) A yarn in Eleanor Clarage's column recently about the soldier who waxed so jubilant when he found a 1941 Christmas number of a magazine in his reading allotment, set us to wondering what kind of reading material was being received at our own canteen. We found out. There are some grand, up-to-date magazines donated and the women are most grateful for them. But there are also some that are honestly too old to be hanging around a railroad station, to say nothing of going traipsing half way across the country with a trainload of soldiers. There is good reading in them, some probably topping that of today, but we're asking you—when you were 21 and a little more, could you have been convinced that anything was entertaining reading that was not written in your language and time? We couldn't. We wanted 'em right hot off the press.

Weddings

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Greer of 336 Hane avenue are announcing the marriage of their daughter, Vivian, to Private Raymond Forbis of 195 Silver street, which took place July 4. The ceremony was read by Rev. Muncy pastor of a Methodist church at Greenup, Ky. They were unattended. For the double ring ceremony the bride wore an aqua jersey dress with white accessories. The bridegroom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Luther Forbis of 195 Silver street and 10 weeks ago was inducted into the U. S. Army. He returned last Sunday to Camp Edwards where he is with the engineer shore regiment.

Both the bride and bridegroom are graduates of Harding High school. Mrs. Forbis, who is employed with the Hunkin-Conkey Construction Co., will make their home with her parents.

What You Buy With WAR BONDS

Millions of rounds of ammunition are needed for the millions of Army rifles used by the American Expeditionary forces in Europe, in Africa, in Asia and the Far East. A ten cent War Stamp will buy a clip of five cartridges for a Garand rifle.

American arsenals are working night and day turning out rifle-caliber cartridges. Case after case of them were in the holds of American transports which recently landed in northern Ireland. You can easily buy hundreds of these clips for our boys with your purchase of War Bonds and Stamps. Invest at least ten percent every pay day and help put over your quota in your community. U. S. Wartime Rubber Shortage Does Not Affect Pens

It is impossible to obtain rubber sacks for your pen because of the wartime rubber shortage. There is nothing we can do about the shortage of rubber, BUT we must prolong the life of your present pen.

How can this be done? It's very simple indeed! There is a sensational new ink that preserves the rubber in your pen. It's called Parker Quink and it is the only ink containing Solvex. Parker Quink protects your pen against corrosion and rubber rot. It dissolves sediment and gummy deposits in the feed. It actually cleans your pen as it writes. Use Parker Quink to keep your new pens new. It is safe, dependable, reliable. Well, what to do about old, crusty pens? Again, just rely on Parker Quink. It often restores them to good working order simply by flushing and filling with Quink, containing solv-x.

Here are a few other outstanding qualities of Parker Quink: It dries far faster than ordinary inks. It is never gummy! It is never watery! It is always deep in color and full-bodied.

Don't delay! Preserve—prolong the life of your pen—use Parker Quink. On sale now at Wiant's Book Store, 120 South Main street, Marion, Ohio.

SUBSIDIES FOR OPA REPORTED DROPPED

Administration Passes Up Part of Price Ceiling Plan.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—The administration was reported today to have decided against asking congress for price control subsidies even though Leon Henderson has warned that price ceilings could not be maintained without them.

Some legislators, who declined identification by name said efforts to revive the administration's demand $750,000,000 subsidy program had been dropped, at least until later in the year.

Price Administrator Henderson had told a senate appropriations subcommittee that in his talks with President Roosevelt and others it was always understood that there would be instances and important cases where the price ceilings of March could not be maintained unless there were subsidy payments of some kind.

Subsidy Ban

The appropriations committee yesterday wrote into a $1,808,000,000 supplemental defense money bill a provision Senator McKellar (D-Tenn) said would forbid use of any part of the $120,000,000 office of price administration operating funds for payment of subsidies.

Previously the administration had sought authority to use up to $750,000,000 to support the price control structure by purchases through the commodity credit corporation and the reconstruction finance corporation of articles which would be resold to distributors at less than their cost to the government. The senate declined to act on this proposal.

Defends Subsidies

Henderson had testified that if the OPA had been able to pay $100,000,000 in subsidies to distributors instead of permitting an increase of 15 per cent in the prices of canned fruits consumers would have been saved $100,000,000 to $200,000,000 ultimately.

He said it was the OPA's experience that a price increase at the source was doubled or tripled before it reached the consumer.

Discussing the question of controlling wages, Henderson told the committee he had established a policy of banning price increases by industries on the basis of pay raises granted to employes after April 27, when President Roosevelt sent his "cost of living" message to congress.

Battle for Egypt Seen As Mutual Play for Position

By DEWITT MacKENZIE
Wide World War Analyst

The battle for Egypt patently has developed into a play for position and a race against time by both belligerents to bring up reinforcements and material, and the outcome of this conflict which is a part of Hitler's win-the-war-this-year offensive may easily depend on which side is the quicker with the reserves.

There is a fair amount of mystery regarding this extraordinary combat which had been relatively quiet for 10 days until yesterday's predawn flareup because forsooth both armies were ragged out and their equipment needed repairs. However as the way things are going the fight seems likely to blow up in our faces in the near future. Certainly the present position is a package of dynamite.

If the fate of the Allied cause didn't depend so heavily on this battle it would be fascinating to watch the contest of wits between General Sir Claude Auchinleck the shrewd and capable Scotsman and Field Marshal Rommel one of the greatest tacticians of his day. The Scot is maneuvering to trap Rommel against the Mediterranean coast and hold him there in a pocket while American and British bombers and British submarines try to cut the Axis supply lines. Rommel is trying to keep his lines of retreat open and hang on to his position until fresh equipment arrives.

Rommel's armored right wing originally had rested some thirty-five miles almost due south in the desert while his left wing lay on the coast. He kept swinging at Auchinleck with that fast moving armored force like a prize fighter chopping with his right hoping to swing the Scotsman back and outflank him—that is put Auchinleck in the same kind of sack that the latter now is holding open as he punches at Rommel.

But Auchinleck wasn't having any. He began to show a retaliatory strength which indicated that he was beginning to receive badly needed reinforcements both men and equipment. At the same time Rommel's striking power apparently deteriorated because of lack of supplies due to the over extension of his lines of communication.

Thus we see Auchinleck become the aggressor in a cautious sort of way—just enough to keep the initiative, make things uncomfortable for Rommel and be ready to take advantage of any opening without actually precipitating a renewal of the battle for which the British weren't ready. Yesterday for instance the British pushed that right flank of Rommel's back still further but Rommel rebounded there and the British struck his left for a five mile advance.

Everybody realized that Rommel hadn't lost his cunning and that he was still the dangerous foe who more than once had turned almost certain defeat into victory. Whether he or Auchinleck is ready for full scale resumption of the battle is not known.

in and made a purchase while the children waited outside. He said he heard an automobile horn blow and went outside in time to see the automobile wheels run over the Bowman girl.

Dangerous Spot

Mr. Wilson said today the trio hurt last night makes eight persons who have been badly injured in front of his store in the last five years.

He said residents of the neighborhood have wanted a traffic light installed at the Copeland avenue intersection for some time and that he expected the matter would be taken before city council soon.

He termed the North Main street area where the accident occurred a "speedway" and said he and several persons in the neighborhood have from time to time checked the day and night traffic, both "through" and coming off side streets, and feel that the street is one of the most heavily traveled in the city.

Cowles Named Assistant War Information Head

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—Gardner Cowles, Jr., was named assistant director of war information today by Elmer Davis, director.

Cowles, president of the Des Moines Register and Tribune and of Look Magazine and vice president of the Minneapolis Star Journal, will be in charge of all domestic operations of the office of war information. This branch will coordinate and disseminate war information in the United States through all channels of communication.

SCRAP RUBBER DRIVE OUTCOME UNCERTAIN

Ickes Reports Good Showing; Ration Decision To Be Made.

WASHINGTON, July 11—The scrap rubber drive launched by President Roosevelt ended last midnight and Interior Secretary Ickes said "a very good showing" was made.

But whether the collections were sufficient to avoid nation-wide gasoline rationing as a rubber conservation measure was yet to be decided by the war production board.

The petroleum industry war council, which spearheaded the drive, said an inventory was being made of the total collections, and the President is expected to announce the results within a few days. The collections on July 3 had reached 334,293 tons.

Ickes noted that some experts had estimated that only about 100,000 tons could be found.

Marion Co. Drive Called Success

Marion county's scrap rubber drive, which ended at midnight last night, is definitely a success, scrap rubber agencies reported today, but final figures will not be available until Monday.

Final figures are to be relayed to state headquarters in Columbus Monday. George Long of the Standard Oil Co., official tabulator of the local drive, reported.

Marion county's quota was 150 tons. Per capita quota was set by local drive officials at 8 pounds.

TRIAL

said he tried to have press association reporters admitted but the army objected on the ground there would be evidence affecting the national security. He said he countered with a suggestion the reporters be barred when such testimony was offered but the army contended it would be too difficult to sift the types of evidence.

Davis said the present arrangement for handling publicity of the trial was not satisfactory either to his office or to the army, but that in the circumstances it was the best that could be devised.

The former radio commentator and newspaper man chosen by President Roosevelt to unify all war information stated:

"The federal government will issue as promptly as possible all news and background information essential to a clear understanding of this nation's war effort.

"The what, why, when and how will be told. The impact of the war on all phases of American life will be reported. So will the co-operative efforts of the United Nations.

"Only information which would give aid and comfort to the enemy will be withheld."

War News Then OWI

All news relating to the war effort, except that concerning military operations, would funnel through OWI's central news bureau, Davis indicated that OWI's relations with the war, navy and state departments were not yet clarified, however.

Questioned as to his relationship with the army and navy, Davis declared that he did not believe a civilian was qualified to determine questions of military security. He added that, thus far, "I have not found any need to the services to hold back bad news because it is bad news."

"Certainly, this office is against suppressing the truth," he remarked.

Davis emphasized that, in event of "sensitive disclosures of operations" between high-ranking government officials, his office would make no effort to suppress the news. OWI would, he said, make an effort to harmonize the differences, if possible, to insure against public confusion.

He added that OWI had no authority over the censorship of correspondence, and that no efforts could or would be made to restrict or censor their operations, but "we hope to be able to furnish information to correspondents if they want it."

RENT CEILING UNDER ATTACK

OPA Under Pressure in Many Parts of Country; Legality of Rules Questioned.

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—The rent control sector of the government's stand against inflation was beset today by strong pressure from organized and individual landlords in many sections of the country.

Threats from Seattle of a nation-wide gathering of property owners to force rent ceilings upward reached the office of price administration here simultaneously with news of a threatened "rent strike" by 200,000 CIO unionists in Detroit if rents were raised.

Attempted wholesale evictions were reported from New Haven, Conn., and to top it off, a suit challenging constitutionality of the whole price control act was on file in Mobile, Ala., where a property owner petitioned federal court to block enforcement of the rent freezing in that area.

For the time being, top OPA rent officials were silent on the situation.

But aside from almost innumerable instances of OPA lawyers rushing to court to prevent evictions arising from rent ceiling disputes, an OPA spokesman indicated the reaction to rent controls, now covering 75 cities, was hardly more bitter than anticipated.

Only two attacks on constitutional grounds—the Mobile case and one in South Bend, Ind.—are known to have been filed, the spokesman said, and only one landlord's hardship case has so far reached Washington on appeal from the local and regional offices. This came from Seattle.

So far nobody has used the three-judge emergency court of appeals authorized under the price control act and appointed by Chief Justice Harlan F. Stone. It was indicated in Washington that OPA might seek to have the Mobile suit, filed by R. Lyles Hatter, transferred to this special tribunal.

Will Ask Indictment on Espionage Charge

NEWARK, N. J., July 11—A federal grand jury will be asked to indict Herbert Karl Friedrich Bahr on a charge of violating the espionage law which carries with it the death penalty or imprisonment up to 30 years.

Attorney General Biddle said in Washington yesterday that in addition it was possible that another indictment would be sought under the general conspiracy law against the exchange student accused by the federal bureau of investigation of being a Nazi spy. The conspiracy count, which covers unlawful acquisition and use of information affecting national defense, provides imprisonment terms for not more than two years and fines of not more than $10,000.

The 28-year-old American citizen was arraigned yesterday before U. S. Judge William F. Smith in New Jersey district court and held without bail until the grand jury acts on his case when it reconvenes Tuesday.

Night Shift Workers Help Harvest Crop

By The Associated Press

SEDALIA, Mo., July 11—Eleven husky railroad shop workers finished their night-shift jobs, then dropped in at the farm of Emmett Bohon and shocked 35 acres of oats before noon.

They refused to take pay from the surprised Bohon, and said all 1,000 Missouri Pacific shop employes have volunteered to help short-handed farmers of the community during harvest season.

VICTORY CORSAGE SALES PASS $1,000

First Day's Returns Exceed 900 War Stamps.

More than 900 war-stamp corsages, more than $1,000 worth, were sold in the Retailers for Victory campaign downtown Friday.

Twelve girls under the direction of Miss Maud Gorham, chairman of the women's division of the city war stamp and bond staff, sold 135 "corsages" in restaurants at noon. The remainder of the sales were made by clerks in stores.

The girls working under Miss Gorham included Gloria Danner, Anne Mapes, Peggy Knapp, Carolyn King, Loraine Evans, Mary Hardy, Patricia Dodd, Dorothy Ann Taylor, Ruth Ann Abel, Peggy Griffith, Helen Huling and Nelda Crabtree. Girl Scouts made "corsages" for the sale.

The campaign continued today.

WAR

near Kantemirovka, 145 miles south of Voronezh.

Lisichansk is 200 miles south of Voronezh.

While the Germans were apparently turning the main weight of their offensive south toward the Caucasus, a Vichy broadcast said the Russians were pressing a counter-offensive north of Voronezh and had blasted a three-mile breach in Nazi lines. Vichy said the Soviet counter blows were developing to the northwest as far as Orel, key German base, 160 miles from Voronezh and 210 miles below Moscow.

Front-line dispatches said the Red armies were fighting tenaciously along the Don river 10 miles west of Voronezh, slashing at the enemy flanks and seeking to close breaches in their river positions.

Red Star, the Soviet army newspaper, declared Russian tank traps and artillery fire were taking a deadly toll of the invaders, but acknowledged that "the area of fighting west of Voronezh is spreading." A Vichy broadcast reported that the Nazis had reached Yelets, 75 miles northwest of Voronezh.

Military analysts said it now was clear that the Germans were seeking a vast break-through to the Caspian sea, hoping to sweep wide across the northern gateway to the Caucasus and thus split Marshal Timoshenko's Ukraine armies and Lieut. Gen. D. T. Kozlov's Caucasian forces.

The Russians conceded the invaders were within 200 miles of the great industrial city of Stalingrad, on the lower Volga, or about halfway to the Caspian. Once that goal has been reached, the Germans could swing around Soviet-held Rostov without fear of flanking attacks and storm into the Caucasus oil lands enroute to the middle east.

The German high command's claim that the Nazis had reached the Don on a 220-mile front below Voronezh would mean that they were within 60 miles of Stalingrad, but there was no confirmation elsewhere.

"The enemy is being relentlessly pursued," Hitler's command said.

HOUSING

eral agency seems inevitable in Marion because the city already is suffering a shortage of houses and the population is expected to grow as the Scioto Ordnance Plant progresses.

Probable Procedure

Although no federal houses have been reported recommended for Marion, there has been considerable speculation about how it is likely to be handled. It is understood that D. C. Mackelmann, regional director for the federal housing authority with offices in Cleveland, would be the official whose recommendations will be followed regarding federal housing here. If and when federal housing comes, it is expected to be concentrated in one or possibly two large areas near the points of employment. Since this is the general policy, it is likely the site or sites chosen for Marion would be near the Scioto Ordnance Plant but probably close enough to the city to connect with utilities and sewers.

Although federal housing projects take various forms, one of the favorite types of buildings are eight-family units with the houses built in rows. Pre-fabricated houses are widely used, and many of these are demountable. This would permit them to be moved elsewhere if the need for them here would disappear after the war.

Another development today came from the office of A. L. Cuckert of Columbus, who is both the district director for the federal housing authority and the official for this district in the handling of applications for priorities on building materials both for new construction and remodeling.

Applications Granted

He reported that priority applications for 23 new houses have been granted and that FHA financing has been approved for 14 of these. He also reported a list of 24 priority grants for remodeling projects.

One of the priority grants for new construction went to Clarence Walker of Oak Ridge Court, covering three proposed houses at Silver and Prospect streets, but it is uncertain whether these will be built at the present.

Another went to J. R. Cogen, Mansfield builder, for 10 living units. Mr. Cogen said these proposed houses would be located at scattered points in the southeast part of Marion, but that he is uncertain at present whether he will proceed with them. He also received FHA financing approval for the 10 houses. The third went to Leslie E. Adams of near LaRue for 10 houses at scattered points in the city. Mr. Adams also was given FHA financing approval for four single family houses.

The list of persons granted priority approval for remodeling projects and the number of living units affected by each project are as follows:

M. L. Ellis, 2; H. E. Dorfe, 2; M. W. Kline, 1; Indoe-Williamson Co., 1; A. P. Gaskill, 5; Holland Furnace Co., 1; E. J. Steinman, 2; W. M. Corkhill, 1; Harry Dorfe, 2; W. B. Cox, 1; E. C. Schwerr, 1; Slanser Lumber Co., 2; Reidenbaugh & Rieger, 2; Crock & McPeck, 1.

ODT ASKS INFORMATION ON OHIO DRIVING HABITS

Policy Apparently Being Established For the State.

COLUMBUS, O., July 11—The state highway department announced today that it had been asked to supply the office of defense transportation with information possibly desired to establish a policy regarding "non-essential driving" in Ohio.

The Ohio planning survey is bringing up to date information on the motoring habits of the state's drivers, but officials were not informed whether the ODT planned to invoke restrictions on automobile travel.

The request, made through the U. S. public roads administration, stated the information was needed by the ODT "in the discharge of its responsibilities in connection with motor vehicle travel during war times."

Fifty workers were assigned to study and reclassify 34,000 interviews of motorists on how much they used automobiles for business, pleasure, shopping, sports and school and church work.

Most Ohio Fairs To Hold 1942 Expositions

CINCINNATI, O., July 11—Former Gov. Myers Y. Cooper, honorary president of the Ohio Fair Managers association, estimates that "more than 80" of the 92 fairs in the state will be held this year.

The expositions will yield the government "probably $1,000,000" in federal taxes on gate receipts he asserted.

Cooper announced yesterday that the greater Cincinnati sesquicentennial exposition at Carthage fair would be conducted Sept. 16-19.

Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, recently asked cancellation of state and county fairs until after the war, but said exceptions could be made if "the amount of travel is not materially greater than would be necessary if going to them for manufacturing purposes."

the price spread as much as 7½ cents instead of the usual 6.6 cents. An official of one leading concern, who prefers to express his opinions anonymously, said that since the maximum authorized eastern increases were 13.7 cents a gallon, tank car prices there probably were too high to start with.

"They don't have to sell that high," he declared. "The OPA sets maximums, not minimums. Competition may adjust part of the situation eventually."

He calculated that after taking out the dealer's cut (four cents), state and federal taxes (6.5 cents), the jobber's cut (two cents) and increased transportation costs, the West Virginia tank car price must run around 9.8 cents a gallon against 7½ cents in Ohio, where the dealer receives one cent less, taxes are one cent less, and transportation charges are normal, thanks to pipelines and lake tankers.

FBI ARRESTS TWO

CINCINNATI, July 11—The federal bureau of investigation announced that two German aliens had been arrested—one at Zanesville and the other at Portsmouth—and would be placed in enemy alien detention quarters here. The man arrested at Portsmouth said he was a Jewish refugee and possessed a camera.

Tire Blow-Outs Cause 2 Traffic Crashes in Area

Tire blow-outs caused two accidents investigated yesterday afternoon and last night by state highway patrolmen from the Marion sub-station.

Cars driven by Miss Edith Anderson, 477 of 675 West Center street and Robert Brooker, 18, of near Marysville figured in a head-on collision about 11 last night on Route 4, south of Marion, when a tire on Brooker's car blew out, the patrol reported.

Brooker was traveling north and Miss Anderson was driving south. No one was injured but the left fronts of both cars were damaged considerably, according to the patrol report. The accident occurred near the Marion-Reserve Power Co. power plants.

Francis John Gaynor, 45, of Dayton, escaped injury when a tire blew out and his car went out of control and into a ditch on Route 42, three miles south of Ashley. The car was not badly damaged, the patrol reported.

ONE-HALF WAR PRODUCTION

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—The federal reserve board estimated today that almost half of the nation's factory output now is war materials. How much higher this percentage may go, the board indicated, is shown by the fact that among durable goods production the war share already is 70 per cent.

Balancing the National Economy

DONALD M. NELSON'S promise that civilian economy will be protected from the unrelenting demands of the armed services indicates a momentous decision somewhere in Washington.

The public has been prepared for any sacrifice that may be necessary to give the armed services what they demanded. The public has accepted the coming sacrifices as one of the penalties of being at war.

Mr. Nelson's promise does not change this attitude. Americans are willing to do whatever is necessary to equip their fighting men. What is changed by Mr. Nelson's promise is the possibility of weakening the civilian economy to the danger point in an attempt to meet all the requirements of the armed services.

These requirements will know no limits. There exists in the military mind a very great capacity for falling into the fallacy of victory by material. There have been, are now, always will be military leaders like Lord Howe and Gen. McLellan whose genius could not shine until warmed from within by assurance of more than enough supplies on hand to do the job. Perhaps the United States will be spared that kind of leadership in this war as war production chief, in any event, Mr. Nelson has undertaken to stand between military needs and civilian needs. His purpose is not to interfere with the prosecution of the war—anything but that. His purpose is to insure the successful prosecution of the war by keeping an eye on the continued health of the civilian economy. One example is enough to show the proportions of that task. In order to keep war factories producing, bus transportation must be maintained. It would be shortsighted indeed to allow a shortage of buses to develop merely because there was a shortage of medium tanks, because without transportation to and from war factories there could be no tanks.

Presidential Coat Tails Shorter

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT could go to one of two extremes in the congressional elections. He could invite all the brethren to hang onto his coat tails while he tried to swing them into office, or he could refuse to give them any help at all.

He has chosen not to go to extremes, however. He will lend the help of one shortened coat tail to the Democratic faithful and other converts in New York state. Elsewhere, the candidates will be on their own, aside from whatever use they may make of past favors bestowed by the White House, or significant agreements on points of policy.

The President is said to be the country's ablest politician. For the last 10 years, with one or two exceptions, he has held the national championship. His worst slip, although the consequences weren't serious, was his attempt in 1938 to purge critics from the Democratic party. He overstepped himself that time. He would have overstepped himself if he had tried it again this year. No one at present is alarmed by too much criticism.

Mr. Roosevelt's political prestige never was greater, but in wartime—even in wartime—any attempt to practice high-handedness in politics will be resented actively. All things being equal, the public would rather take its chances with too much opposition than with too much unanimity. Germany has all the unanimity anyone could desire.

The Conscientious Motorist

BETWEEN the lines of official and semi-official utterances the conscientious motorist is supposed to find irresistible appeals to his better nature. When this happens, he either lays up his car or at the very least quits using it for anything but the most urgent trips.

There actually are automobile owners doing this. They are motorists with a highly developed social conscience, the kind that can do something without being prodded and bossed. They have a feeling of responsibility about the rubber shortage.

Unfortunately, they are surrounded by a mass of evidence that fills them with doubt. They may take comfort in knowing they are doing the right thing, which is the reward of the righteous, but inevitably they wonder about their relation to others who are driving their cars as usual.

They see hundreds of workmen and office workers driving to and from work alone. They see share-riders, too, but it's the motorists traveling alone that they notice.

They see their neighbors and their friends driving their cars as freely as they ever did not making even so much as a gesture in recognition of the fact that last Dec. 7 the Japanese hit the United States where it was most vulnerable—in its dependence on an Asiatic rubber supply. They feel a little foolish when they think about their own feeble attempts to save tires.

And of course they see the other thing that infuriates even those who aren't doing a thing, themselves, to save tires—the kid joy riders and the motorized wolves who cruise up and down the main drag and back and forth and around and around, hoping for the best. These are tough times for the conscientious motorist.

News Behind the News

Hitler Plan of Grand Strategy Seen Aimed at Winning War This Year.

By PAUL MALLON

WASHINGTON [illegible] Hitler [illegible] and the [illegible] this year [illegible] the opportunity [illegible] recent events.

It is the view of dreamers at Berchtesgaden [illegible] the only [illegible] and, the one he [illegible] the German people [illegible] from the [illegible] with [illegible] from [illegible] that.

The [illegible] thing about [illegible] is the similarity [illegible] of formerly, [illegible] and is the fact that he [illegible] striking almost [illegible] to consolidation and [illegible] unified [illegible] namely German objectives.

[illegible] ignores the whole [illegible] theater of war. The operations of General Rommel have been [illegible] by Hitler to a subconscious. Most recent reports from that front make it clear.

The Rommel campaign originally was intended only to capture Tobruk. Hitler was greatly surprised at the ease with which this was accomplished, and authorized further pursuit to capture Alexandria and Cairo, but would not furnish enough prompt plane reinforcements to assure that result. He refused to spare them from his own campaign in Russia.

There the whole mass of German strength has been centered to force an armistice before next Dec. 1. Even axis-partner Japan has not fitted yet into Hitler's intuitive scheming (it may any day now, with an attack on Russia in the Siberian theater).

Centers on Russia

Even the United States and Britain have been largely ignored in the Hitler calculations, except as they are involved in his Russian purposes. There have been no large concentrated bombing attacks on Britain this year.

His naval strength has been centered off Norway for a sea blitz against Allied supplies to Murmansk (the results of this operation are still undetermined in view of the claimed Russian disabling of the Tirpitz and the amazing German contention that they have sunk 32 out of 38 ships in one convoy.)

In the Mediterranean, he has brought to bear only a few Italian submarines under German officers, and a limited number of planes to attack Malta and British convoys to Egypt.

Also the Nazi submarine operations off our coast have been shown by events to be only a minor phase of Hitler's operations, despite our heavy losses, amounting to about 360 known and many more unknown ships.

By these attacks in American waters, Hitler is only trying to get Britain and the United States to transfer more of their armed [illegible] craft from the Russian convoy route to Murmansk and thus make an attack more [illegible].

His Russian tactics indicate training as brilliant as the German army showed earlier in France and Poland. At Kursk, he struck at a shrewdly-chosen weak point between the central and the southern Russian armies, cutting the railroads connecting them, and thus preventing them from getting reinforcements back and forth. This cut enabled him then to turn south against Marshal Timoshenko's army with the immediate objective of destroying it and the ultimate objective of reaching the Volga, where he could sever the indispensible Russian oil supply route from the Caucasus or seize the fields himself.

May Hit Moscow

But it is apparent from the way he is working, his military objectives in Russia are not limited to these points alone. His preparations behind the lines already show he is getting ready to hit at Moscow again in the north, if these southern operations do not work out well.

It is not correct to say that the war in Europe must be determined by the results of these operations within the next 30 days. Hitler is taking his time. He can fight in the south until Dec. 1.

Thus, he has more than four months remaining in which to fulfill a realistic, plausible, but not characteristically imaginative campaign.

Unless he can destroy the Russian army with this program, he can not even claim a victory in Europe. And if he does destroy the Russian army, he must still face the United States and Britain. All bad news now and for the next few weeks should be read in the light of these focusing facts.

Convoy Trouble

Mr. Roosevelt is as annoyed as any one at the inability of our coastal convoy and patrol system to cope fully with the Nazi sub menace off our shores.

A congressman who had attacked the "gold bar brigade" of the armed forces in a speech went in with fear and trembling next day before the President, but found him using language even more emphatic. Also the President congratulated a senator who has assumed a critical attitude toward the production phase of the war effort.

Apparently Mr. Roosevelt is not sensitive to any criticism designed to arouse a greater war effort.

Rubber from Yams

Florida Woman Convinced Problem Is Solved.

RUBBER RESEARCH—Mrs. Ruth S. Wedgeworth and Dr. Wreal L. Lott inspect base solution for making latex from Florida sweet potatoes, sugar cane and peanuts.

By GLADYS DEGNER
Wide World Features Writer

BELLE GLADE, Fla., July 11—Deep in the heart of the Everglades there's a little woman with a big idea.

Mrs. Ruth S. Wedgeworth has rubber on the brain.

Already she is one of the biggest independent farmers in the Glades. She operates single-handed three farms, a packing house with 200 employes and a fertilizer plant that makes more than 2,000 tons of fertilizer yearly. Mother of three children, she still finds time to act as bank director, steward of her church and director of a hospital.

But all that is not enough. Mrs. Wedgeworth is convinced that in the rich Everglades farm country is the solution to America's synthetic rubber problem. She plans to make it from sugar cane, peanuts and sweet potatoes.

Right now she heads a committee of Glades farmers who have applied for loans of $100,000 apiece to plant 100,000 acres of American Sugar Beet to these three crops—object rubber.

The plan originated by the United States Sugar Corp., calls for a $75,000,000 project. And all Mrs. Wedgeworth and her fellow farmers are waiting for is an official "go" sign from Washington.

As proposed to the federal government by Clarence R. Bitting, president of the sugar company, the farmers and corporation would put up a third of the cost and the government the balance for the construction of processing plants and shipping facilities. Mrs. Wedgeworth's farm group has reacted favorably to her committee's first report on the proposal by sending an enthusiastic endorsement to official Washington, asking that the way be cleared and necessary priorities granted for the purpose.

No claims have been made that the latex made from the vegetable matters is any good for tires. In its present state of development, however, they say it is oil resistant and can be used for protective coating for textile fabrics for gas masks, balloons, pontoons, and tarpaulins. In this way other rubber used for these purposes could be released for the manufacture of tires.

TWENTY YEARS AGO

It was Tuesday, July 11, 1922.

It was announced that nine operators from every coal-producing state in the country and directors of the National Coal association would meet in Pittsburgh Wednesday morning in a conference designed to frame a statement of the operators' position in reply to President Harding's proposal for ending the nationwide coal strike.

President Harding, in an address to departmental heads and bureau chiefs in Washington organized into the "business establishment of the government" by Gen. Charles G. Dawes, emphasized the need for utmost economy in governmental expenditures and warned the budget makers for the next fiscal year that they would have to use their pruning knives. "Our country is one of the few in the world which is now paying its way as it goes, and I must regard with disfavor any tendency to interfere with this condition or to increase taxes," the president said.

Miss Abigail Harding entertained members of her embroidery club at tea at her home on East Center street. Guests from out of town were Mrs. R. E. Woodruff of Hornell, N. Y., Mrs. Henry Bell of Hillsboro, O., Mrs. Ellis Houghton of Cleveland, Mrs. Alberta Andrada of Havana, Cuba, and Mrs. Donald Marshman of Cleveland.

Better Explanation of Government Policies Urged To Prevent Misunderstandings.

By WALTER LIPPMANN

EVEN if there were no need for censorship, it would still be an immensely difficult work to enable the people to understand the what and the why and the how of the many unusual things that they must do and put up with in war time.

The longer the war lasts, and there is every prospect that this will be a very long war, the more important it will be to see to it that the press and the radio are able to keep the people informed upon matters like rationing, price and wage fixing, and draft, taxes, salvage, priorities and allocations which touch directly the daily lives of every one. It is in this field of war information that the government has thus far been least successful.

This will enable us to regard the field of military news as distinct. Here, too, there is very much that can and must be improved if the nation is to have confidence and the capacity to judge and criticize constructively and the convention of the high seriousness of the war. But military events and the diplomatic actions which are indissolubly bound up with them must be subject to the censor, and therefore they present a quite different problem from the measures which have to do with civilian participation.

Different Fields

The same procedure cannot be used in the military and the civilian fields — in the field where censorship must operate and the field where the purveying of information is a daily need.

Obviously, there is a twilight zone between the two fields; they are not clearly and absolutely separated. For example, all the facts about the oil supply of the east coast include facts about the disposition of tankers and of escorts which must be censored. Nevertheless, as a practical matter, the censored facts are an unimportant part of the information that civilians need to know, and as regards oil, the problem of the government is not how to conceal a few facts but how to explain the whole situation.

My own impression is that in the civilian field the government has fixed its attention on spot news to the neglect of the difficult business of enabling the newspaper men who must inform the public to inform themselves.

The government has never realized fully what every working newspaper man knows—that newspapers are not produced by telegraphing official announcements to be set up by printing presses. How news is presented and explained and commented upon depends upon how well the correspondent and his editors understand the whole situation. In fact, news in the narrow sense of the term is like the visible part of an iceberg which, in fact, is nine-tenths under water: a free press as distinguished from a government bulletin board cannot do its part unless newspaper men have a substantial working knowledge of the iceberg under the water.

Explanations Needed

Thus, when a government agency starts a novelty, like rationing, it makes up its mind after receiving reports, holding oral conferences and exchanging written memoranda. These are the icebergs under the water. What the government agencies do not do, what I think they will have to do, is to make available to the responsible newspaper men the substance of this background in some considerable detail.

Now it is evident that newspaper men cannot be invited to sit

Daily Bible Thought

Man's body is formed from dust of the earth, but not His spirit. We inherit a nature essentially divine, if we will claim it and be worthy of divine sonship: "Thou madest him a little lower than the angels. Thou crownedst him with glory and honor."—Hebrews 2:7.

Let's Do It Right

Our Returning Heroes Should Be Looked After Better This Time Than They Were Before.

By DAMON RUNYON

AFTER the first World war came an appalling era of crime in the United States. As former soldiers were occasionally involved, some say it was because our young men had been schooled to the business of killing and to a hard boiled way of life generally and therefore had developed a contempt for law and order, but that was gross libel.

The direct crime of the era of crime was prohibition and its by-product of bootlegging, fostered and encouraged by many of our leading citizens and even by officeholders who refused to obey the law. The percentage of former soldiers concerned in the graft and murders that rose out of the booting war quite small compared to the number of men who had been in the war.

It was the custom in those days to exaggerate the war service of any of the prominent criminals of the period who may have been in the army or navy. I remember that one distinguished gun thrust of Chicago was usually reported to have been a machine gunner in France and some argued that his experience there had influenced his subsequent bloody career, but I do not recall that it was ever definitely established that he had been a gunner, or even in France.

I BELIEVE it was just popular rumor which some writer of the period cooked up to lend a little color to the murderous gentleman. Of all the thousands of desperadoes of the prohibition period, only a few were former soldiers. They were mainly young civilian buzzards following in the wake of the war.

However, there is no doubt that there was great discontent and unrest among the men who were suddenly thrown back into civil life after a long stretch of service and found themselves jobless and broke. There is no doubt that those who did finally fall into crime were driven to it by their poverty, which in those days was perhaps accentuated for them by the spectacle of war profiteers rolling in wealth.

It was enough to make any man who had offered his life to his country plenty sore, especially when his only reward on discharge was the outgoing pay of about $60. They found their old jobs in the possession of fellows who had craftily couged service. The civilian population, engrossed in new interests and eager to forget war, elbowed the former soldiers aside.

IT is always the same story. The men who went out in '98 had similar experience. The soldiers of the '60's, especially in the north, were likewise disregarded after the war. Probably it goes back to the Revolution. There is no greater reproach to the civilian public than its attitude towards former service men after the cheering has died away.

That is why I would like to see the pay of the soldiers and sailors in this war continued for a year after their discharge from service. I think it would give each and every man the opportunity of looking around at his leisure and getting his bearings. It would provide security against financial distress during this period. It would eliminate unrest to a great extent.

I think this continuance of pay would be accepted by the men in lieu of the bonus they are sure to eventually demand. There is no difference in paying it immediately after the war or years later, except that it would be more welcome immediately. A young fellow without the worry of finding a job and providing for his dependents on his mind is certainly more of an asset to the nation than one embittered by the ingratitude of his country.

I REALIZE that my plan involves a large sum of money. But what is money against the sacrifice the average man makes for his country when he enters the service? And if you are commercially minded, let me suggest that almost every dollar that would be paid under my plan goes back immediately into the channels of business.

Crocheted hammock slings to support soldiers' injured arms is a new invention of Miss Marjorie Bate, a member of St. John's Ambulance in London. The hammock, made in wide mesh, is said to give better and more evenly distributed support to an injured arm. It also does away with knots and pins.

Vancouver Island Set for Emergency

Wide World Features

VICTORIA, B. C.—A civilian automobile reserve of nearly 500 vehicles and power boat squadrons of some 400 craft stand ready for any emergency on Vancouver Island, whether it be a sudden troop movement or the evacuation of children.

Harold Husband, of Victoria, recently appointed by Transit Controller George S. Gr[illegible] to survey and organize all emergency transport facilities on the island, has indexed every motor vehicle on the records of provincial police. His staff has arranged to fit drivers into an emergency plan and organized a civilian sea force of ferries, tugs, barges and smaller power boats.

The island has been zoned and district controllers for the emergency service appointed in some cases. Car owners have equipped their vans and trucks with removable seats so that vehicles could be transformed into evacuee carriers at a moment's notice.

Gliders in Argentina

(From Foreign Commerce Weekly)

Local construction of gliders is being encouraged in Argentina, according to Argentine press reports. The Bureau of Civil Aeronautics, it is stated, is trying to obtain raw materials (spec[illegible] woods, metal sheets and parts) from Brazil to be used in the work. If this material is obtained, it will be turned over to some of the local flying clubs, which will make their own gliders.

Altoona, Pa., has the largest car wheel foundry in the world, and the largest railroad roundhouse in the world. It also boasts a world famous horseshoe curve.

CLEAN OUT SOOT

To save heating plants from possibly serious damage, soot should be removed as soon as fires are allowed to go out for the season.

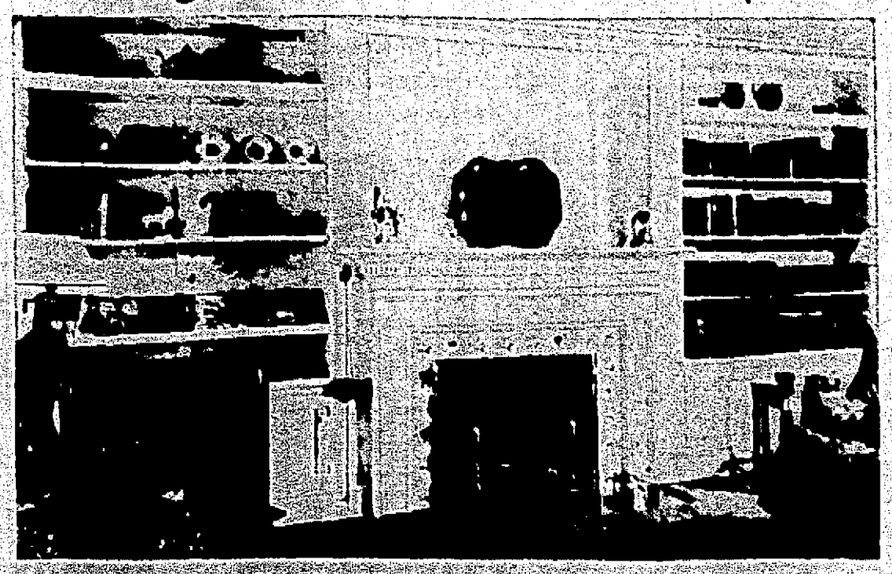
Getting Full Value from Fireplace



Built-in bookshelves on either side of fireplace stress its importance. Interest is increased by using some of the shelves for colorful knicknacks.

By PATRICIA MONTCLAIR

Are you getting maximum value out of that living room fireplace of yours?

If you think of a fireplace only as a source of heat you're cheating yourself, for it should mean far more than that. Rightly regarded and treated with imagination it can be made to play an important part in the room's decorative scheme.

Any fireplace, of course, is the natural focal point of interest in a room and unless it is so recognized and the decoration as a whole planned with this in mind, you're apt to find yourself with a definitely lop-sided room, decoratively speaking.

So take another look at your living room to make sure you've utilized its fireplace to the best advantage. You may find there's something very simple that you can do to make it a still more harmonious contributor to the comfort and charm of your home.

Building Quiz

Q. I am making a kitchen out of an upstairs bedroom. What can I do to the floor to deaden sound.

A. As much of the sound will travel through the framework, complete sound deadening is hardly possible. You can get a good effect by covering the present floor with stiff insulating sheets covered with linoleum. Do not use nails, for these would carry sound, but cement the insulating board to the floor and use cement for the linoleum. If heavy furniture will be used in the new kitchen, denting of the linoleum can be prevented by covering the insulating board with thin plywood.

Q. After a heavy rain, there is water in the basement of my year-old house. Walls are cinder blocks, and the floor is cement, about five feet below the ground level. The floor rests on clay. How can the condition be corrected?

A. In a rain, water cannot sink down through the clay; your best move will be to excavate outside and to lay drain tile along the footings to carry off the water and so to prevent it from getting under the floor. In refilling the excavation, pack it solidly with earth and form the top into a sloping bank that will throw water away from the house. Sow it with grass. Rainwater leaders should discharge at least 15 feet from the house to keep the water from running back to the walls.

MRS. MURDOCK TAKES A CASE

by George Harmon Coxe

CHAPTER TWENTY-ONE

Familiar Profile

JOYCE followed to the bedroom doorway and when the light was turned on she saw that there too, a search had been made. Then a new thought struck at her and she turned and hurried back across the living room.

This was a front apartment with two windows overlooking the street and one on the side. She went to one of those at the front and pressed her face against the glass.

Below, the wet pavement was sleek and shiny with the reflection of the corner street light, the tops of the parked cars glistening. The branches of a maple tree, its leaves mostly gone, swayed before her in the wind, making a tracery of light and shadow across her face.

When she could find no sign of life in the night she stepped to the side window. Across an eight or ten foot gap another apartment house blocked her view and not until she looked down did she see him. It was the movement at first that caught her eye, like a sliding shadow, incomplete but definite. It fled along the base of the opposite wall, turned, was caught briefly in the rays of the street light, and was gone, not towards Dean Thorndike's parked car but the other way, to safety.

Joyce caught her breath. That fleeting glimpse had shown her a slender, overcoated figure that held a suggestion of tallness even from this angle. There was something sickeningly familiar about that figure, about the instantaneous flash of a profile as it turned the corner of the building.

Ward Allen, Joyce thought. And then, left with nothing but the shiny sidewalk below her, refused to believe it. She must be mistaken. She had barely seen him. How could she be sure...?

She turned, aware that Delia was beside her. Not knowing how long she had been standing there, but certain the girl had also been looking out, she felt her veins run cold.

"Delia!"

"Did you see him?" The girl seized one arm. "Who was it?"

"I don't know."

Delia looked up at her, face tense and lips parted.

"Joyce."

"I don't," Joyce said. "I'm not even sure I saw him. Something moved—a shadow or something—it might have been a man. How can I tell?"

"I suppose you couldn't," Delia said; then, her voice awed and low: "What if the envelope had been here?"

"But it wasn't. That's why we decided to leave it at my place, isn't it? So no one could find it? And now we'll keep it right there until you know what's to be done with it."

Delia released her grip and lowered her glance, and there was something so forlorn about her that Joyce took her in her arms.

Charming Hestor.

The little butler took Murdock's hat and coat and escorted him through the sitting room to the library door. Hestor was sitting on the leather divan, well propped up with pillows, a magazine in her hand.

"Thank you, Edward," she said. "I think that will be all."

Edward bowed and withdrew with a "Very well, Madam," and when Murdock hesitated, Hestor arose and offered him both hands. As she stood erect a curious warmth stirred in him, rising across his chest and up into his throat, and when he took her hands his fingertips tingled.

He realized he was staring and she sent her eyes up at him, speculating. She smiled again. He grinned back.

"Well," she said, "am I all right, do you think?"

Murdock coughed. "I think so," he said, his embarrassment passing, "and maybe even a little on the gorgeous side."

"That's worth a drink, coming from you."

She gestured to one side and he saw the tea wagon that had been used that morning. He busied himself with Scotch and ice and and soda, and handed her a drink. She sat down on the divan. He took a chair opposite, got up again to give her a cigaret and went back.

"What's this about Ward Allen?" he asked.

Her face sobered and she looked past him. "I don't know, exactly. I liked Ward, and in Caracua he wasn't altogether very successful. That's what I wanted to talk to you about. I'm not sure that I should, although I know what I'm about to say will be safer with you than anyone else. I met him not long after he arrived in San Baria. It was inevitable that I should, since good-looking young Americans are scarce and always in demand at club parties and dances."

She settled herself against the pillows and looked in her glass. "He'd come there to work for a bank or some investment company branch, hadn't he? The representative of some American concern at any rate. Later when I heard that he had lost his job, I could understand why."

She drank again and put her glass aside.

Blast Past

"What actually happened was that he was picked up by a political group. As a matter of fact, it was a pro-Nazi crowd—this was before Poland — and they were out to increase their influence in any way they could. I don't know just what Ward was supposed to do, some sort of lobbyist, I think. The thing was, he had a lot of dash and good looks and clothes; he knew everyone and was always around. His sort could be valuable to almost any sort of organization. In any case he went along like that for quite some time; then there was some mix-up and he was on his own again. Oh, yes"—she hesitated—"I almost forgot to tell you that Perry Clarke was part of the same crowd."

"Oh," Murdock said, "so that's how it started?"

"I don't know," Hestor answered, "but let me tell you the rest of it—I'm nearly finished. About that same time, Ward was seeing quite a lot of some woman who said she was an Italian Countess—the Countess de Feranl. She was a professional charmer. Well—she had a small party one night, Ward stayed late and there must have been a lot of drinking because—at least from what I heard—when the Countess woke up the next day she was alone, and missing a pearl necklace and a sapphire and diamond bracelet. The police found them in Ward's apartment—I believe he was still drunk when they came. He was arrested, of course, but somehow managed to get out of the country before he was tried."

"Perry Clarke knew about it, didn't he?" he asked.

"Naturally."

"You think Clarke tried to blackmail Ward?"

"I don't know. That's why I wanted to talk to you. If I told the police that's what they would think, isn't it?"

"I'm afraid so."

"And yet"—Hestor eyed him steadily—"why should he? After what I had given him?"

Carey Nurse Made Second Lieutenant

Special to The Star.

CAREY—Miss Virginia Mitchell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Fred Mitchell, is now a second lieutenant in the army nurses' corps, having enlisted at Fort Hayes, Columbus, last month. She left Columbus recently for Tallahassee, Fla., where she is stationed at the air base hospital on Dale Mabry field. Lieut. Mitchell is a graduate of Carey High school. She also graduated from Flower hospital, Toledo. The past year she has been a nurse at Children's hospital, Columbus.

Windows That Stick Should Be Repaired

A window sash may stick for a number of reasons, but, regardless of what they are, the sash should be repaired, as few minor things about the home can be as annoying as sticking windows.

In the case of excessive moisture, the wood in the sash and its frame swells, and this swelling causes the sash to bind. This trouble usually appears when the wood begins to dry. Before any corrective work is undertaken, the home owner is advised to see if a thorough coating of beeswax or paraffin will relieve the friction.

A broken sash-weight cord will leave the window without support when it is raised, and this should be repaired immediately when it occurs. A cord which has stretched will prevent the sash from going to the top of the window.

CIRCULATION AIDED BY GOOD PLANNING

Passageways Need Careful Attention in Plans.

Circulation, or passageway from one place to another, in the house is an important matter and one which should be given due consideration in the planning of a house.

The modern practice of placing the kitchen in the front of the house near the entrance to the street is rapidly gaining in popularity. By locating the living room in the rear and the kitchen and entryway at the front of the house the working operations of the house are confined to one place and the living quarters to another.

In many small homes, however, entrance to the house is made through the living room. The only passageway from the kitchen to the front door is through the living room, so that, instead of being a place of relaxation, the living room becomes a thoroughfare.

Proper planning makes it possible to move from one part of the house to another without passing through the living room.

REGENCY DECORATION

To complement English Regency furniture, clear color tones are used. White, cream, light sea-green, salmon, apricot, pale lavender, reddish pink, light blue, buff, lemon, and clear gray are the most popular. Ceilings are of plain flat color. Walls are plain from base to cornice. Wood paneling was not in favor as Regency decoration but where used the moldings are light and delicate and are painted with the wall color so as not to emphasize them. Stencil decorations are used in swag and drape designs as wall borders.

MOST FHA HOMES IN 1941 UNDER $6,000

Checkup Shows Most Activity In Lower Price Brackets.

Nearly all new single-family homes accepted last year for mortgage insurance under Title VI of the National Housing Act, and nearly 73 per cent of those accepted under Title II were valued at less than $6,000, according to officials of the Federal Housing Administration.

Although building costs rose during the past year, the median valuation of new homes on which mortgages were accepted for Title II insurance was lower than in any previous year. The median valuation last year was $5,045, compared with $5,030 in 1940, $5,243 in 1939 and $5,623 in 1938.

In addition to new homes financed under Title II and Title VI, there were 9,145 financed under Title I, where the loans were $3,000 or less and the valuations rarely exceeded $3,300.

The volume of Title II new-home mortgage volume was fairly evenly distributed in the range between $4,000 and $6,000, with 14.9 per cent between $4,000 and $4,499; 13.2 per cent between $4,500 and $4,999; 14 per cent between $5,000 and $5,499, and 11.3 per cent between $5,500 and $5,999. Sixteen percent fell between $6,000 and $7,000.

The volume of Title VI new-home mortgage business was concentrated largely between valuations of $3,500 and $4,500, with more than 38 per cent falling within this range.

Ontario, Canada, will save $10 tons of steel by reducing the weight of 1942 motor vehicle tags and requiring only one to a vehicle.

Mel Harder Allows Four Hits As Cleveland Defeats Philadelphia, 4-2

By The Associated Press

Mel Harder, just past the midway mark in the year of his comeback, appears to pitch better ball in day-get than defeats.

Manager Lou Boudreau had made a Friday night pitcher out of him, but in his last two nocturnal assignments he went to Boston and then was knocked out of the box in the first inning by the Tigers for another defeat.

Reverting to daylight assignments, he avenged the Tiger setback with a three-hit victory over Detroit last Sunday, and yesterday allowed the Athletics only four hits as Cleveland won, 4 to 2. He thereby brought his season record up to an even break, eight games won and eight lost.

Ray Mack's bat had a great deal to do with the Indians' scoring. He got three hits off Herman Reese in three times and drove in two runs as the Tribe opened the three-game series.

Mack In Lead Role

Three of the winner's tallies came in the fifth. Mack's Texas leaguer drove in Buster Mills, who had doubled and stolen third. The second baseman was caught at third on Otto Denning's roller, but Dennig scored on Boudreau's single and Ora Hockett drove in Harder, who had bunted safely. Mack's sixth inning single added the final run by plating Jeff Heath.

Vernon Kennedy opposes the Athletics' Russell Christopher on the mound in today's rubber game.

In other American league games the New York Yankees continued their mastery over the St. Louis Browns with a 5-2 victory—their eighth straight over St. Louis. The Yanks scored all their runs on three hits off John Niggeling in the first inning.

Tex Hughson not only pitched seven-hit ball, but drove in three runs himself with a double and a single as the Boston Red Sox battered the Detroit Tigers 6-1.

Philadelphia-Pittsburgh and Chicago-Washington night games were postponed.

Foxx's Bat Explodes

No one has accused James Emory Foxx of anything but a decorous debut in the National league. For days after he joined the Chicago Cubs the big slugger was as inconspicuous as a stick of gum.

But all the senior circuit expected the beast's huge war club to remain silent indefinitely, it must know better now.

He set off a cannon-cracker on the Fourth of July with a three-run homer that knocked Mort Cooper out of the box after winning nine straight games; yesterday he made half of the Cubs' six hits and knocked in the deciding run in a 3 to 2 victory over the Boston Braves.

The Braves' Eddie Miller, who hadn't made a miscue in 40 previous games, bobbled one chance.

One up in their four-game series, the Cincinnati Reds meet the Brooklyn Dodgers in a doubleheader today.

Starr To Seek 13th

Ray Starr, trying for his 13th victory, and Paul Derringer, anxious to even his pitching record at five-and-five, were the Redleg hurling nominees against Curt Davis and Johnny Allen.

Bucky Walters was the big hero last night as the Reds snatched a 2-1 victory in the tenth inning. After holding the hard-hitting Dodgers to a half-dozen singles for 10 frames, Bucky got his second single of the night in the tenth, reached second when Peewee Reese dropped a double-play throw from Pitcher Hugh Casey, and slid home on Frank McCormick's clean single to center to beat Pete Reiser's throw.

The victory was Walters' tenth of the season against four losses—four of the setbacks coming in the first three weeks of the season. Also, it was Mucky's first conquest of the league-leaders, who had beaten him three times.

Local Youths in Navy Favor Physical Education Program

By LOREN W. TIBBALS
Marion Star Sports Editor

DURING the past year, and particularly since Jan. 1, the nation's newspapers have been splattered with unfavorable charges in connection with the navy's physical fitness program which has placed untold numbers of college athletic greats in "soft" posts.

Whether or not claims of opponents are justified is a matter of personal judgement. Here are contentions for and against the program:

Opponents have constantly lashed the program as one of "names" rather than one of merit, inferring that All-America athletic rating guarantees a commission in this highly-manned branch of the service.

On the other hand, advocates of the program point to the successes already accomplished by training units under the physical fitness authority. Few opponents challenge these claims.

In general, youths assigned to this branch are, advocates agree, former college athletic notables. In addition, a majority of the instructors have taken various college courses which best suit them for direction of physical education programs. Hygiene, gymnastics, anatomy and sport theories are only a few of the courses encountered by the average college physical education major.

Popularity of phases of the physical fitness programs with youths in the various armed forces is the true acid test for the experimental program. After talking with local youths stationed at Great Lakes Naval Training station, your correspondent learned that most seaman accept the idea as a highly-beneficial part of their training.

O. S. U. Coaches Active

Two Ohio State university coaches now at the U. S. navy pre-flight school at Iowa City, Iowa, will play important roles in the school's coaching clinic Aug. 3-15. Lt. Commander Larry Snyder, Buck track coach and chief coach of the U. S. track team entered in the 1936 Olympics at Berlin, will conduct an inter-collegiate track and field clinic. Lt. Eddie Blickle, an assistant Ohio football and basketball coach, will assist.

Lt. Rollie Williams, former University of Iowa coach, in directing a basketball clinic. Another Ohio coach, Lt. Charley Erdmann, formerly of Oberlin, will lecture on mass exercise.

The school is one of a few to be operated this summer. Many leading colleges throughout the country have cancelled their clinics for the duration.

Coaches and athletic directors enrolling in the clinic school will live with naval aviation cadets and take part in the regular school program. There will be no tuition or lodging charges to delegates, the only expense being $1.25 per day for meals. Lt. Col. Bernie Bierman, athletic director, has completed plans to handle a larger enrollment than originally expected.

MUTUEL BETTING AT GOSHEN CANCELLED

Court Jester Wins Senior Village Farm Stake.

GOSHEN, N. Y., July 11—There were so few entries for today's final Grand Circuit program on the Goshen raceway that the state racing commission ruled there would be no mutuel betting.

The scarcity of talent was caused by the early shipment of horses to the Roosevelt raceway on Long Island where a program opens Monday.

Court Jester, a handsome black colt owned by Fred Egan and Rupert Parker of Aiken, S. C., triumphed for the twelfth straight time yesterday in the Senior Village Farm stake.

In the day's other top flight event, the Historic, a race for three-year-old trotters, Paxton Hanover triumphed. The Village Farm stake carried a purse of $5,100 and the Historic paid $2,000.

Marion Group To Play Bucyrus Moose Sunday

Manager Harry Adams will take his Marion Grays, colored baseball team, to Bucyrus for a game with the Bucyrus Moose 649. Game time is 2:30. Included in the Grays line-up will be several new faces. Players are asked to meet at the home of Manager Adams on North Greenwood street at noon. The locals will be after the fifth straight victory over the Bucyrus team.

BREWER SHORTSTOP IS SECOND IN A. A. BATTING AVERAGES

15-Point Gain Last Week Puts Stanky Behind Joe Bestudik.

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 11 — When a player sees his batting average drop 40 points in five weeks, he might think he's done a total fadeout. But it's an ailment a few base hits cure quickly, as Milwaukee's Eddy Stanky is finding out.

The 25-year-old Brewer shortstop went through his big decline from May 28, when he was batting .351, to July 2, when he was down to .311. But a 15-point gain last week was just what he needed, for he is now the No. 2 man in American association hitting circles.

Stanky's average of .326 through Wednesday's games left him only nine points behind leading Joe Bestudik of Indianapolis, who has a .335 average.

Joe Vosmik of Minneapolis registered a 14-point gain last week to move from ninth to third place with .314. Willis Norman of Milwaukee is next with .311 followed by Andy Gilbert of Louisville and Wayne Blackburn of Indianapolis, both at .309.

The rest of the top ten: Al Rowell of St. Paul, .308; Eric Tipton of Kansas City, .305; John Lazor of Louisville, .302, and Bill Barnacle of Minneapolis, .298.

Bestudik had the most hits, 106. John McCarthy of Indianapolis led in runs scored with 66. In extra-base hitting, Stankey showed the way in doubles with 27. Bestudik and Charley Stevens of Toledo were tied for most triples with nine and Hub Walker of Minneapolis was tops in home runs with 13.

McCarthy had driven in the most runs, 64, and Columbus' George Myatt was the base-stealing champ with 17.

Herb Karpel of Kansas City headed a list of diminishing unbeaten hurler—now standing at three—with five victories. The most wins were 11 by Charley Wensloff of Kansas City and Milt Haefner of Minneapolis, the former having five losses and the latter eight. Nelson Potter of Louisville still had the most strikeout victims, his total now being 84.

All-Star Game July 23 at Kansas City

By The Associated Press

The date of the American association All-Star game, set months ago, is July 23. The site, just determined, is Kansas City.

The Blues earned the right to be host team against the stars of the seven other clubs by defeating Minneapolis last night, 4 to 3. They thereby assured themselves of being in first place when the deadline rolls around four days hence. Kansas City's lead is 4½ games and it has only three left before the deciding date.

Milwaukee stopped St. Paul, 10 to 6, in the only other game played. The Indianapolis-Columbus and Louisville-Toledo games were postponed because of weather.

Lords Softball Team To Play Prison Nine

The Lords Jewelry softball team is scheduled to play the Ohio State penitentiary team Sunday at 1:30 at Columbus. In a previous encounter the Henderson Hurricanes downed the locals.

Manager Robert Putman has nominated Harold Millisor to start on the mound against the Hurricanes. Coxie Weiss will be used to relieve Millisor.

All players are asked to meet at the Lords Jewelry store on South Main street Sunday at 10:15 a. m. to make the trip to Columbus.

Following the game the team will go direct to Sugar Grove lake for a picnic supper and outing.

OHIO RANKS FOURTH IN HUNTERS

Ohio ranked fourth in the United States in the number of hunting licenses sold last year, according to figures just released by the United States Fish and Wildlife service.

Michigan headed the list with 718,251 licenses sold, Pennsylvania was second with 678,688; New York next with 568,875, Ohio came next with 542,574.

Sportsmen of the entire nation paid $14,464,000 for 7,925,000 hunting licenses. This represents over a million dollar increase over the 1939-40 season.

PYMATUNING LAKE OPEN YEAR ROUND

Inconsistencies that have existed in the length of fishing seasons on Pymatuning Lake, which lies partly in Ohio and partly in Pennsylvania, have been ironed out in recent conferences by Ohio and Pennsylvania conservation officials.

Now the lake is open 365 days of the year, instead of being limited only to the period between July 1 and Nov. 30.

The season for muskellunge, black bass, pickerel or pike perch at Pymatuning is from July 1 to Nov. 30, both dates inclusive. The minimum size limit on muskies is 30 inches and the daily creel limit, two; pickerel or yellow pike-perch, minimum size, 13 inches, the daily creel limit being six. Black bass must be 10 inches or longer to be legal and six is the possession limit; sauger, minimum size, 11 inches, daily creel limit, six.

No size limit applies to bluegill, yellow perch, white bass, sunfish, catfish, sucker and carp. The combined possession limit is 25.

Snatches of Sports

By HUGH FULLERTON, JR.
Wide World Sports Columnist

NEW YORK, July 11—While other golfers have been worrying about the war's effects on their clubs, a bunch of the boys up at St. Johnsbury, Vt., decided to do something about it. ...Like all the rest, they've had to economize, so every Monday evening ten or a dozen gather on the course and instead of chasing a little pill they put in three good hours wielding scythes, riding mowing machines, raking and weeding traps, etc.. So now they not only have a layout that's in fine shape but they have a lot more interest in the club than before.

Service Dept.—Soldiers at Fort Monmouth, N. J., would like to know if any other outfit has a more versatile athletic officer than Lieut. Joe Zarlin, the little guy who led the cheers for their football team last fall before entering the officers' candidate school. Lieut. Joe was named "All American Cheerleader" at Illinois. He also was president of a half dozen or so student organizations, sang with a dance orchestra in his spare time and appeared in a few shows. Later he held down a daytime job, served as assistant manager of a theater by night and managed to get away two evenings to study at Northwestern. Newspapers that want to drop the Yanks or Phils from the major league standings because they're too high, too low, might substitute the Great Lakes Naval Training station club. So far the Sailors have met the Reds, Cubs, Phils and White Sox and they're scheduled to take on the Athletics and Giants. A game with the Red Sox was rained out.

EX-FREMONT STAR NAMED NOTRE DAME FROSH GRID COACH

Robert A. Snyder, Former Ohio U. Gridder, Is Selection.

By The Associated Press

SOUTH BEND, Ind., July 11—The Rev. J. Hugh O'Donnell, president of the University of Notre Dame, yesterday appointed Robert A. Snyder as Notre Dame freshman football coach.

Snyder, who has been quarterback on the Chicago Bears starred at Ohio university, Athens, O., before entering professional football.

He will teach the freshmen the rudiments of the T-formation, help with scouting and, if time permits, will assist backfield Coach Ed McKeever with the varsity.

Snyder, a native of Fremont, O., succeeds Lieut. William H. Cerny, U. S. navy reserve, who is participating in the navy aviation physical hardening program.

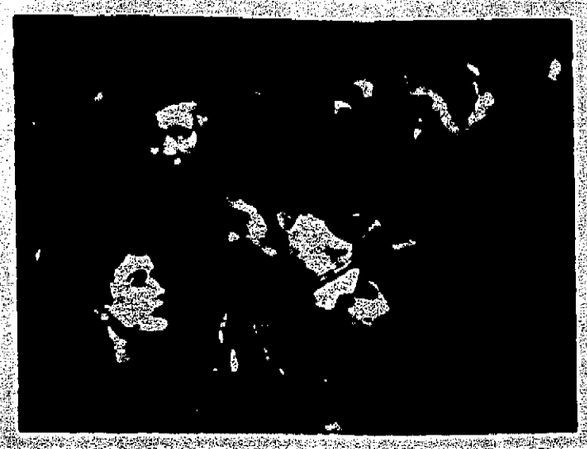
IN "REAP THE WILD WIND" AT PALACE



In the picture above, Paulette Goddard and Ray Milland are shown just after he has done battle with a giant squid under the surface of the ocean. Lynne Overman and Robert Preston look on. This picture is from "Reap the Wild Wind," now showing at the Palace theater.

Tuesday and Wednesday, Spencer Tracy and Katharine Hepburn are co-starred, with Miss Hepburn appearing as a newspaper columnist and Tracy as sports editor on the same metropolitan daily.

"Parachute Nurse," which will also be shown Tuesday and Wednesday, is the first film to deal with Uncle Sam's newest recruits. The picture, which features William Wright, Marguerite Chapman and Kay Harris in its cast, also brings out a peacetime value of the service.

"Stage Coach Buckaroo" and "Drums of the Congo" are the features to be shown Thursday, Friday and Saturday. "Stage Coach Buckaroo" is the story of the adventures following the opening up of the stagecoach lines on the western frontier and stars Johnny Mack Brown and his two film partners, Fuzzy Knight and Nell O'Day. "Drums of the African Congo" is the story of life in the African interior. The film features Ona Munson, Stuart Erwin and Peggy Moran.

STATE ASSOCIATION PLANS AREA MEETING

Session To Be Held at Grand Prairie Church Thursday

Women's Missionary societies of the 16 churches of the Marion Baptist association will hold a one-day meeting Thursday, July 16 at the Grand Prairie church. A basket dinner will be served at noon.

The program will include "Echoes of the House Party," a resume of the meeting held last month at Granville, by Mrs. O. T. Swigart, of Marion, and "Echoes from Northern Baptist Convention at Cleveland," by Mrs. Elmer Myers, of Brush Ridge. The speaker for the afternoon will be Mrs. R. O. Gooding of Cincinnati, state vice president of the Home and Foreign Missions of the church.

FOUR FROM FAMILY IN ARMY AND NAVY

Three Sons, Daughter Represent Home Near LaRue.

Two sons in the army, one son in the navy and a daughter in the army nursing service entitle Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Wood of three miles west of LaRue to a four-star service flag in their window.

The daughter, Miss Esther Wood, is a graduate of the Grant Hospital School of Nursing at Columbus. In 1932 enlisted in the army nursing service the first of this month and is now a commissioned second lieutenant, stationed at Dale Mabry Field, Fla. Prior to enlisting she was a special duty nurse at the hospital.

Oldest of the quartet in service both in age and in years of service is Karl, 30, who came to Marion in 1932 and enlisted in the United States navy. Four years ago a short time before his enlistment time was up, he re-enlisted and was assigned immediately to the China seas. He learned the trade of baker and has advanced to the rank of chief commissary steward. His wife, who lives at Long Beach, Calif., wrote his parents recently that he is stationed somewhere in Australia. They also have learned that the cruiser on which he is assigned participated in the Battle of Java.

In March of 1941 Frederick, 24, enlisted in the army and was sent to Camp Grant, Ill. Last August he was transferred to Fort Bliss, Tex., with the 16th Veterinary Evacuation hospital. He is a corporal.

Myron, 22, enlisted last October and was sent to Camp Lee, Va., and later to the Holabird school in Baltimore, for special mechanic's training. He is now a technical sergeant, stationed at Fort Jackson, S. C.

Both Frederick and Myron were employed at the Hornell plant of the City Ice & Fuel Co. before enlisting.

There are five other children in the family, Madison Wood of Glad street; J. M. Wood of Marseilles, Mrs. R. J. Hougendobler and Mrs. Rowland McElhaney of LaRue and Mrs. Robert Hickman of near Morral.

All the family were born near Hepburn. Of the four-star group, Frederick and Myron are graduates of the Marseilles High school and Esther and Karl are graduates of the LaRue High school.

On Father's day all of the children but Karl were home for the day.

"Reap the Wild Wind" At Palace Through Tuesday

Story of 1840 Salvage Pirates Features Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne.

Dealing with the threat to America's sea life in 1840, when salvage pirates led sailing ships to disaster on the hurricane-swept reefs off Florida, "Reap the Wild Wind" opened at the Palace theater yesterday.

This is one of the motion pictures dramatizing the heritage left us by the men and women of other days who fought America's battles. The similarity is striking between our present grave situation and the swashbuckling tale of one of the early battles for freedom of the seas. The toll of ships piled up on the hurricane-swept reefs and plundered by maritime gangsters was about three ships a week. "Reap the Wild Wind" depicts the story of how brave men and a girl helped save the country from strangulation.

"Reap the Wild Wind" was made from a Saturday Evening Post story by Thelma Strabel and was directed by Cecil B. DeMille.

In the chief starring roles are Ray Milland, Paulette Goddard and John Wayne. The main featured roles are occupied by Raymond Massey, Lynne Overman, Robert Preston, Susan Hayward, Charles Bickford and Walter Hampden. "Reap the Wild Wind" will continue through Tuesday.

On Wednesday only the feature will be "Mayor of 44th Street," in which starring roles are played by George Murphy, Anne Shirley, William Gargan and Richard Barthelmess. There also will be a picture, "Annapolis Salutes the Navy."

Thursday through Saturday the feature will be "Broadway," in which George Raft, Pat O'Brien and Anne Gwynne are starred. Not a musical feature in the accepted sense, "Broadway" includes in its score more than a dozen musical numbers which have endured through the years. Included in the musical resume are "Sweet Georgia Brown," "Dinah," "Three O'clock in the Morning," "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling," "Sidewalks of New York" and "Some of These Days."

The stressing of musical interpolations in "Broadway" is possible due to the development of the story. It is played largely back-stage in a night club where Raft and other principals are seen as entertainers.

Raft enacts the role of a hoofer and O'Brien is cast as the "toughest cop on Broadway." Additional headliners are Janet Blair as Raft's dancing partner and Brod Crawford as a gang-leader.

'Mr. Celebrity' On Program of Double Features at State

"Mr. Celebrity," which will be on the screen of the State theater Sunday and Monday, is the story of a young veterinary and his youthful nephew who, trying to elude a court order, fall upon "Celebrity Farm," operated by a group of former champions of various trades and professions. Facing ruin, the champs accept the young vet's aid in restoring a broken down racer to form so they may win back enough to save their home. Stars of the picture are Francis X. Bushman, James Seay and Buzzy Henry.

Playing as a double feature on those days will also be "Cowboy Serenade," featuring Gene Autry and Smiley Burnette.

Abbot and Costello will be seen in another of their pictures, "One Night in the Tropics," on Tuesday and Wednesday. Also on the screen will be the Tom Tyler and Bob Steele picture, "Gauchos of Eldorado."

"Tuxedo Junction" and "Texas Man Hunt" will be the bill for Thursday, Friday and Saturday.

IN MYSTERY PICTURE AT OHIO

Brenda Joyce and Milton Berle look a little frightened in this scene from "Whispering Ghosts," the comedy now playing at the Ohio theater.

Mystery On Ohio's Bill

"Whispering Ghosts" Features Milton Berle; Booked on Double Bill.

"Whispering Ghosts" and "The Mad Martindales" are on the double bill which opened yesterday at the Ohio theater and will play for four days. "Whispering Ghosts" has as its background a ghost ship. Abetted by Brenda Joyce, John Shelton, John Carradine and Willie Best, Milton Berle plays the role of a radio detective who solves a crime on the air each week. He gets involved in the mystery ship which Brenda's grand-uncle once owned and tries to solve the disappearance of some jewels. The solution of the crime makes for hilarious entertainment.

In the "Mad Martindales" Jane Withers departs from her former bumptious roles and plays the part of "the sub-deb" daughter of a sub-normal family," headed by Alan Mowbray as her eccentric father and Marjorie Weaver as her jealous sister. Father Mowbray is an antique collector, while sister Marjorie collects engagement rings as the family fortune diminishes. Jane takes matters into her own capable hands and manages to provide one of the most eventful adventures she's ever encountered.

Brenda Joyce is the star also in "The Postman Didn't Ring," which will be on the screen Tuesday through Thursday. Newcomer Richard Travis will co-star with her in the film telling how a whole town is thrown on its ear by the arrival of a momentous letter 50 years overdue.

Also showing Tuesday through Thursday will be "Through Different Eyes," in which four pairs of eyes saw the same crime, but four pairs of lips told different stories, while a man's life hung in balance.

"Wings for the Eagle," showing seven days starting Friday, is a story of the men and women who are turning out planes to smash the Axis powers. Ann Sheridan and Dennis Morgan have the leading roles. The film is set for the most part in the huge Lockheed aircraft plant.

Green Camp 4-H Club Holds Meeting Thursday

PACKERS OBJECT TO HIGH HOG PRICES

Claim Operations at Profit Impossible Under "Freeze."

By The Associated Press

CHICAGO, July 11 — (Wide World)—When the price of hogs rose to $15 a hundred pounds on the Chicago market this week, meat packers, speaking unofficially, claimed they could not operate profitably with hogs at that figure when dressed pork and lard quotations were frozen by of price administration anti-inflation regulations.

The packers said the 15-year peak hog quotation made it difficult for them to obtain a profit even on the pork and lard they sold government lend-lease buyers, the selling on which is higher than the ceiling for domestic consumers.

Smaller packers, particularly those which do not pass federal inspection, and therefore cannot sell to lend-lease buyers, have complained about the freezing of pork prices, while no ceilings were placed on live animals for some time. Only recently, however, have the larger packers contended that the situation was interfering with earnings.

Livestock producers do not have the same view. They say the packers always complain they are starving, but at never shows up in their earnings statements. One official of a producers' association said he believed the packers deliberately had pushed the hog price up to $15 in order to focus federal attention with a possibility of ceilings on live hogs to the market.

To the question of why they continue to pay high prices for hogs if they don't cut out at a profit, the packers reply that if they didn't have any slaughter material their losses would be greater. It is better to buy hogs at high prices and take a minor loss than not to buy hogs and have a larger loss, they contend. After hitting the $15 peak hogs reacted later. However the close was down only about 15 cents from the top and only 5 cents under last Friday's quotations. Receipts throughout the week were smaller than expected.

Good and choice steers and yearlings arriving in small supply and wanted by eastern shippers, worked 25 cents higher. Common and medium grades were down an equal amount.

Good and choice native spring lambs and yearlings closed 50 to 75 cents lower.

Bulletin Reports Wool Trade Moves Cautiously

By The Associated Press

BOSTON, July 11—The Commercial Bulletin says of the wool market today:

"While the situation appears to be clearing up slowly the wool trade does not feel fully out of the woods and is moving cautiously. Sales have been few and limited in volume, with prices showing little change for the week.

"Interest has centered chiefly on the strong effort of the wool growers to have the government take over the wool clip and if this should be deemed advisable a program has been suggested whereby a price floor may be put under the wool growers without disrupting the industry."

The paper will publish these Ohio quotations:

Domestic fleeces—delaine unwashed 45-48; ½ blood combing 45-47; ¾ blood combing 50-51; ¼ blood combing 50-51.

Mrs. Reber Dies at Home Near Upper Sandusky

Special to The Star

UPPER SANDUSKY, July 11—Funeral services will be conducted Monday at 2 p. m. at the home and at Salem Evangelical church at 2:30 for Mrs. Grace Reber, 53, who died suddenly Thursday at her home eight miles northeast of here. She had been in failing health for a year. The body will be at the home after 7 tonight.

Mrs. Reber was born in Harpster.

Surviving are two children, Mrs. Harold F. Schilling of Quincy, Mass., and Ernest Lewis Reber, at home; and one brother, Delta E. Lewis of Little Sandusky.

Marionite's Brother Dies in Delaware

DELAWARE, O., July 11—Funeral of Harry Webster Clark, 64, Delaware plumber and contractor who died Thursday in White Cross hospital at Columbus, will be conducted Sunday at 2:30 p. m. in the Morrison funeral home here.

Mr. Clark was a brother of Thomas Clark of Marion. Also surviving are the widow, Mrs. Amanda Clark, two children, Paul of Delaware and Martha in Georgia, and two sisters in Columbus.

Marion Police List 241 June Arrests

During June city police made 241 arrests, according to a report filed with Safety-Service Director Clyde O. Caldwell by Chief of Police William E. Morlan. A total of 1,403 traffic tickets were issued, 703 calls answered, 634 complaints handled and 221 meals served.

Property returned included two motor vehicles, a bicycle and miscellaneous articles, and miscellaneous property, valued at $1,000 and over, was found.

STOVE BURNS COAL, BUT WITHOUT SMOKE

Columbus Institute Improves Old Base Burner.

By The Associated Press

COLUMBUS, O.—A new type of stove that burns coal but emits no smoke whatsoever has been unveiled by science here.

It looks like an overgrown garbage can and was created by the Battelle Memorial Institute for the bituminous coal industry which admitted frankly it wanted to meet competition from cleaner methods of heating than the old parlor baseburner.

All they will say about the workings of the new stove is that it employs a new principle of burning, just what that is will remain a deep secret until patents are completed, the institute said.

Any type of coal may be used. It is fed into the top of the circular burner. Peering in, you see the usual amount of smoke roll off the coal, but that smoke never leaves the stove. The only residue that slips up the flue is noncombustible gases. The stove has the same old ash bed beneath, but the amount of ash is considerably less than from an old type heater.

The stove was one of several projects developed by Battelle for the coal industry. Former Governor ... Lunsdale, an engineer retained during the ... was hired ... to the ...

FIELD IN TIRE THEFT

DELAWARE, O., July 11—Carl Votaw, 21, of Powell and James Edwards, 21, of Franklin county, charged with larceny in connection with the theft of three automobile tires, Monday from a farm near Powell, were bound over to the grand jury when arraigned Thursday before Justice J. J. Schweitzer. They were committed to the county jail when they failed to post bond. They were arrested Wednesday by Deputy Sheriff Earl Frevel after the tires were traced to a Delaware filling station.

MISCONDUCT CHARGED

Delmon Kissinger, 21, was arrested at 2:02 a. m. today on North Main street on a charge of disorderly conduct. When arraigned in municipal court, he pleaded guilty and was fined $10 and costs.

Yugoslav Patriots Wage War on Large Scale

ISTANBUL, Turkey, July 11—Yugoslav patriots of General Draja Mihailovic are waging warfare on a considerable scale against German, Italian and Bulgarian forces from mountain strongholds in southern Siberia, Yugoslav official quarters here reported today.

The latest summary, received from the Serbian front on May 29, said that after a fortnight of fighting the Axis forces had failed to take a single point. The Yugoslavs were reported fighting Germans and Bulgars attacking from the east and Italians from the southwest.

The Yugoslav informants said the Axis employed an entire S. S. blackshirt elite division, some German armored units, the 16th Bulgarian division and between two and three Italian divisions.

Another major battle was reported in progress in Croatia with some 10,000 of Mihailovic's troops standing off a vastly superior force.

in Mr. Henderson's office or given the free use of his letter files. But what can be done is what ought always to be done as a matter of sound and orderly government—Mr. Henderson's announcements of policy should be supported by a comprehensive brief, setting forth the data and the reasons on which he is acting.

This may seem like a lot of trouble but in the end it would save trouble. For if policies were launched only after they had been presented in a careful brief, the government agencies themselves would know better than they now do what they are doing.

The procedure I am suggesting is, it seems to me, positively necessary in a time when great numbers affecting the daily lives of the people are undergoing the administrative action, and not by the established legislative duress. It is the lack of this action which deprives the public of the ... body of information ... it ... sound ...

LEAP OVERBOARD FROM OVERCROWDED BOATS

Some Sacrificed Lives to Make Room for Wounded.

By The Associated Press

SAN FRANCISCO, July 11—U. S. navy men leaped overboard from overcrowded whaleboats and sacrificed their lives in the battle of the Coral Sea, to make room for the wounded, two survivors of the U. S. naval tanker Neosho disclosed.

The story was related in an interview by E. A. Flaherty, 22, electrician's mate, 3rd class, St. Louis, Mo., and by D. J. Nelson, 22, signalman, 3rd class, Laurel, Mont.

They were on the Neosho when she was blasted by Japanese bombs last May 5. Flaherty said all hands were ordered to abandon ship and the whaleboats were launched.

It became evident that there would not be room for everyone in the two boats, A naval reserve lieutenant, Henry K. Bradford, ordered the uninjured out to make places for the wounded.

"He led the way himself," said Flaherty, "plunging into the water and grabbing a towline on the boat."

Eventually, the lieutenant and some of the enlisted men of those who leaped were saved, but the others—about a dozen—swam until they sank from exhaustion, or were killed by sharks.

Rescue was five days in coming. A U. S. destroyer picked up the survivors.

Public Invited To Engineers' Meeting

Because of the timeliness and interest in the topic, "Mechanics of Bomb Protection," to be discussed by J. R. Shank, assistant director of the engineering experimental station of Ohio State university, at a meeting of the Marion chapter of the Ohio Society of Professional Engineers Monday night, the public is invited, Floyd G. Browne, president of the chapter, stated.

The meeting has been scheduled for 8 o'clock in the Legion Dugout, and will be of interest not only to engineers but to all residents of Marion and vicinity charged with the problem of protection in the civilian defense program, Mr. Brown said.

STOCK SALES STILL LAGGING

Selling Exceptionally Light in Today's Short Session; Trends Spotty.

By The Associated Press

NEW YORK, July 11 — The stock market exhibited further hesitancy in today's short session but enough bids came in during the final hour to lift assorted leaders fractions to around a point.

While starting trends were a trifle spotty, selling was exceptionally light. This apparently inspired some earlier skeptics to take on a few favorites and, at the close, the trend was relatively steady.

The ticker tape frequently was at a standstill and volume for the full proceedings was around 130,000 shares.

Brokers reported considerable speculative and investment reluctance based on fears of Russian war reverses and the disposition of bullish contingents to operate warily pending outcome of the resumed major battle in Egypt.

The strong market drives of Wednesday and Thursday, on the smartest activity of the year to date, continued as a sustaining influence.

Steels were up for a while but U. S. Steel and Youngstown Sheet later backed away. Mill operations next week were expected to recede in some districts owing to suspensions for repairs.

In the gaining column, most of the time — scattered issues eventually wavered — were American Telephone, Westinghouse, Dow Chemical, Montgomery Ward and International Harvester.

Intermittent laggards included General Motors, Chrysler, Anaconda, Sears Roebuck, General Electric, Southern Pacific, U. S. Gypsum and Sperry.

Market analysts noted the forecast of WPB Chairman Nelson that war goods production this year would reach $45,000,000,000 and rise to $70,000,000,000 or $75,000,000,000 in 1943.

Studied also was the summary of the National Lumber Manufacturers' Association disclosing that, while lumber output, shipments and new orders in the week ended July 4 were similar to the preceding week, increases over the corresponding period a year ago ranged from 14 to 15 per cent.

Prospect of Rationing Rail Travel Mentioned

By The Associated Press

WASHINGTON, July 11—Prospects of continued civilian travel on railroads is "none too good," Joseph B. Eastman, director of defense transportation, has told a senate appropriations sub-committee, it was disclosed today.

Questioned by the committee in connection with a $1,850,000,000 supplemental bill, Eastman asserted he didn't believe civilian rail travel would be eliminated entirely.

"If you get down to the rationing of our transportation it would probably mean putting it all on a reserved seat basis," he added.

Nutritional Opinions

"I Would Advise you to retire," said my old friend, Dr. Adrian Gibbs the other afternoon.

"The only thing you were ever supposed to know anything about was nutrition and nowadays it is perfectly impossible for anybody to be an authority on nutrition because all the authorities disagree.

"For instance, there is your valued colleague who believes that high blood pressure, hardening of the arteries and all the consequences of these conditions come from eating eggs, butter and milk. He has proved this to his own satisfaction on rabbits. Every Christmas he goes on a spree and eats one egg, drinks a glass of milk and eats an entire serving of butter on a plate of bread. This is his concession to the vitamins.

"Of course, his whole theory is at variance with the vitaminists who think that everybody should have an egg, a glass of milk, some butter once a day in order to prevent starvation, fatigue, high blood pressure and arteriosclerosis.

"Both of these crowds are equally eminent in the field of nutrition. What are you going to do about it? Your reputation will be ruined no matter what decision you make.

"I also find that there is some little difference among people in high authority about how to control the war by diet. First, as suggested by Dr. Robert R. Williams, a pioneer in the field of vitamin research, vitamins control the tides of world conquest by increasing the pugnacity and crowding the populations of aggressor nations who eat vitamin foods and at the same time reduce the birth rate and undermine the vigor of those nations destined to be vanquished who neglect vitamins in their diet.

"Contrary to that, and according to Dr. Frederick Hoelzel, too much emphasis has been placed on the value of enriched foods and vitamin preparations, because too much food and excessive catering to appetite can wreck empires as well as individuals. Vitamins make them soft.

"In other words, according to the equally eminent authorities, plenty of vitamins make people war-like, or in the other opinion plenty of vitamins make people want to lie down and be peaceful.

"You, my friend, are on a spot. You have to decide and whichever way you decide, your reputation is bound to be gone. I would advise you to take a post-graduate course in dandelion culture and give up human nutrition entirely.

"I admit I don't quite understand the experts myself. Just before the war I read an article about how the Germans could never do any fighting because their food had no vitamins. I also read the same thing about the Japanese. It seems they have been doing a little better than the nutritional experts predicted, for the nutritional experts now say that the Germans have practiced the decortication of grain for human use by far the least extensively of all people in Western Europe and that their efficiency and thoroughness is due to this. It is also said that the Japanese have a rich and complete diet consisting in whole rice. That is how they were able to overcome the English who eat nothing but roast beef, potatoes, tomatoes, eggs, milk, butter, yeast and other debilitating foods."

WHEAT STORAGE FACILITIES LIMITED

Carry-Over from Last Year Ties Up Space.

Marion's elevators are ready to receive the salable portion of the 1942 wheat crop but operators today warned that storage could not be handled as in former years because of the lack of facilities. The Marion Milling Co. alone said that it could store privately owned wheat.

Record from the Marion county agricultural conservation association show that last year there were 91,581 bushels of warehouse-stored wheat and 6,885 bushels of farm-stored wheat in Marion county.

This year's lack of facilities is due to the fact there is a large supply left over from last year and that the government a year ago shipped a large quantity here to be stored.

Bird Repays Kindness by Saving Benefactor

By The Associated Press

LOS ANGELES, July 11 — A blackbird that fell from its nest a year ago and was rescued by Nelson Collard has now rescued its benefactor.

The bird, a household pet now, flew from its kitchen perch into the bedroom and awakened Collard and his wife.

The kitchen was afire.

The supply of chickens for food in the United States this year is expected to reach 28 pounds per capita, the largest on record.

Pitfalls of Love

By ADELE GARRISON

"THANK YOU, I'll obey you implicitly," Katharine said, with a smile sadder than tears, then followed Adams out of the apartment.

"Poor deluded child!" said my father. "She will have a sad, fruitless search, but there wasn't the slightest use of trying to argue with her."

"Did you see the letter she received from Jack?" Dicky asked.

"No, but she had it in her hand," I replied. "She reread it to me, and I memorized it."

I recited the words of the letter, and they listened without interruption until I had finished.

"A forgery, of course," my father said, "and a clever one, for you say Katharine recognized Jack's handwriting."

"She was sure it was his," I answered.

"When she comes back," my father directed, "try to get hold of that letter long enough for me to have it photostated, even if you have to steal it."

"I shan't have to do that," I said. "I am sure she will turn it over to you willingly, for she would be exceedingly glad to have it definitely proved a forgery."

"Yes, you are probably right," my father commented. Then he turned briskly to Dicky.

"This changes my plans, Richard," he said. "Harry really does not need a nurse. You can do everything necessary, and if by any chance he should require one, Dr. Twitchell can send one in. And I want Katherine and Margaret to remain here in this suite, with Adams on guard where he was before.

Puzzle for Lillian

"There probably will be an attempt to get into communication with Katharine here, for they will figure she will come directly to Margaret.

"So tomorrow morning, Richard, you will go over to the Underwoods and take over, explaining about Katharine's arrival and my reasons for keeping her and Margaret here. That will give Lillian something to puzzle over, which will be good for her. But now I mustn't keep you any longer. I need not warn you, Richard, to be watchful and alert."

"I'll be on the job, sir," Dicky replied. Then my father went out and Dicky strode quickly to the closet where the maid had put the bed linen for the living room couch, which Dicky had used the preceding night.

Dicky's Plan

"Card from the Chambermaids' Union right in my pocket," he said, emerging with his arms piled high. He did not stop at the living room couch, however, but went through my bedroom to the camouflaged door leading to the communicating apartment where my father had stationed Adams.

"Whatever are you going to do?" I asked.

"Use you bald, woman!" Dicky admonished with what I knew was purposeful levity, calculated to divert my mind from tragedy.

"When Katharine returns and uses the key you gave her to come in here, I don't want her to come upon my snoozing personality unawares. Suppose I should be snoring! Therefore I'm going to camp down in the other suite in the room adjoining this.

"Thanks to Dad's precautions," he went on, "there won't be any danger for you tonight. That gifted listening post, Mr. Milner, manager of the Lanafield, believes father, and will report according Adams is on the job for your to his masters. So you can go to sleep in peace."

The Stars Say—

For Sunday, July 12

SUNDAY'S horoscope is a very favorable one, with promise of a warming, generous, expanding and happy astral influence pervading all the activities. These may be confined to religious and charitable affairs with major stress on domestic, social, friendly and sentimental attachments.

Those whose birthday it is may expect a year of moderate growth and expansion, with fair opportunity for gain and progress. However the accent seems to be found in the pursuit of pleasure and good fortune in domestic, social, and affectional enzagements.

A child born on this day should have several talents and moderate ambitions but its main objectives center upon social, domestic and affectional happiness and success.

For Monday, July 13

MONDAY'S astrological forecast is for a lively and eventful day in both business and social affairs. There may be much to be attained by travel, change, communications, and by writings, publicity and promotional enterprises. In these superiors, employers and those in power will be ready to give substantial support.

Those whose birthday it is may enjoy a happy and progressive year with much gain through travel, change, transactions with agencies or promotional enterprises, in which those in important positions collaborate with hearty interest. There may be trivial postponements or sudden situations to confront.

A child born on this day should be versatile, energetic, literary, and also gracious, sociable, kindly and may enjoy a life of popularity.
